Thread: The Brotherhood Innuendo & Emotional Support Team Recruitment

King Cin - March 3, 2016, 1:51 pm

Introduction

This is the official recruitment thread of The Brotherhood's Innuendo & Emotional Support Team. We will focus on assisting users in the Innuendo and Health Wise sections in a way that others aren't able to do. We select only the most reliable and knowledgeable users whose skills apply to mental health, relationships and seduction/pickup. Recruitment isn't based purely on knowledge, but also on whether we think members would be a good fit within our community. People often see giving advice related to mental health or relationships as something anyone can do. While this isn't wrong, people often tend to give inadequate advice. As a team we're trying to give the most accurate advice possible. The Innuendo & Health Wise sections go hand in hand with each other because they often affect each other. A breakup might be the cause of depression, or one might decide to better their social or love life once they fix their insecurities or mental state. You should be aware of the fact that only a few people will be accepted.

Application

In your application we want to see you're passionate about emotional health or innuendo. We're only looking for the best of the best and we expect you to put time in your applications. To add to this, to weed out certain types of people your application will automatically be declined if you do not include "[Username Here]'s Brotherhood Application" somewhere in your application. Aside from that we also want to see personality in your application. A form will be posted below with questions you're required to answer. If you wish to do so, you may add in extra questions yourself. Voice or video applications are encouraged as well. You may apply for both sections.

After applying to The Brotherhood, do not PM one of the team leaders or group leaders to review your application. If we are interested you will hear from us. We may decide to interview you if you interested or we may just invite you immediately. This depends on the applicant. Recruitment will end when we feel we have enough members. Best of luck to applicants.

About yourself: I used to day dream about all the girls I'd get when I grew up. Then one day it hit me, I'm never to young to be attracted to girls. With many inspirational characters in my mind (Joey Tribiani) I tried and tried to get girls, and have devoted a large majority of my life to it. I'm a good looking guy, I have sex very frequently, and know exactly how women work.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Innuendo

Position towards the LGBT community: Feel free to do whatever you want, nobody should judge others.

Notable Threads (if any): My posts can be found all around the Innuendo section.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I have a lot of experience with innuendo.

Reason why we should accept you: I'm a reputable member who understands the concept of relationships, the illusion/delusion of love and manipulation, which plays a bigger role in these things then you'd think. For some reason all my Innuendo posts were junked, but I am definitely gonna work on building the structure and quality of the forum again.

Thanks.

Im currently going to college, I love to help others, I'm serious and dedicated in what I do, I love to make money, I've had a lot of things happen to my life, I am a caring person, but when fucked over obviously I wont be for caring.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Both

Position towards the LGBT community:

I'm straight, but i support them because I have a couple of friends who are transgender, gender fluid, etc..

Notable Threads (if any):

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4952786>

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo:

I have helped people of my best friend which recently die to try and move on slowly, I have stopped suicides, I am currently enrolled in a gym which tell me healthy things to consume and I can be able to tell people what they should eat and shouldn't, I can recommend ways to give a women pleasure, I can offer suggestions in everyday situations, and I am very helpful.

Reason why we should accept you:

I can bring in expertise in the helping field because I have helped so many and helping is my passion.

I can tell more about me and what you would like to ask of me.

About yourself: I've been suffering with social anxiety and clinical depression for over 3 years now and I know what it's like to have a unique way of thinking and get excluded from groups and ignored even though u are special and have a great attitude towards others. I like talking to people, hearing their problems and I am confident in my way of thinking. Even if I can't help myself cause I'm a total imbecile, the advice I give to people prove to be working. The main reason I got into hacking/pentesting/security studying is because it helps me clear my mind and makes me focus which keeps my brain healthy. Seeing Mr. Robot when it came out was mindblowing like they made that tv series for me.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: both

Position towards the LGBT community: Why would one be judgemental on some else's feelings, u got one life and u are free to do whatever makes u happy.

Notable Threads (if any): Nothing related to this.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: Battling with everything I've encountered in my life, especially the past 3 years made me realize what I am made of and that I am strong enough to take it even if it's a long journey it will eventually end.

Reason why we should accept you: As I said I love hearing people's problems and helping them out, I've been doing that all my life, I'm always curious of what problems people encounter and I am really good at reading emotions, feelings and people in general. I take this as a gift because the strongest people have the difficult tasks in this world. Everyone suffering from something should not run away from it but face it and I am here to help, because I don't other people to go through even harder times than they are.. we all have a story. Also by helping other people and solving their problems I indirectly help myself figure a way out of my own isolation.

WienerNips - March 4, 2016, 11:46 pm

I talk to a lot of girls that I find attractive and pretend that I'm really into their problems and frustrations. I listen and listen hoping that one day my good-mannered ways will get me the beautiful princess I've been waiting for all my life. Oh.. sorry, anyways; I'm really good at being friends with girls and never saying what I truly feel when they talk to me about how their boyfriends are assholes, as I silently day dream about how much I can improve their lives as their man. And then when they're done spewing all their frustrations at my soul, I will try to comfort them; realizing that this is the right opportunity to announce my true feelings and emotions about them. As I tell them I can make them happy I am utterly rejected once again. I always find this impossible since I'm always so nice to them and gentlemen-like. As I hear the same old words come out of her mouth, I make myself forget all the good times I spent with her as friends due to the fact that being together as partners in life, is now over. I will now begin my quest of being the same passive-aggressive and over-attached man I am once again. Fedora-tipping intensifies.

But seriously I actually like being an ear for people. I know this is not your traditional application, but maybe you will appreciate my spiel. Good luck to you guys.

I can provide physical health tips if that's of any use to you guys. Mental health? Well... I'm not a clinical psychologist, so can't do that for ya.

I don't think I do anything special in terms of what you're looking for. My activity outside the marketplace is rather abysmal to be honest.

I usually like to help people go through tough emotional times. I can also help people through physical health (Exercise, diets, etc). But I'm mostly here for a couple laughs and wishing you guys good luck finding people. If for some reason I met those requirements, I could consider joining.

Edit: I actually don't care much for committed romantic relationships at the moment. I'm far too busy with school + work to be involved in a relationship. Friends plus your occasional casual relationship is fine for me to keep things interesting every once in a while ;)

About yourself: Well, to start off, I'll be completely honest. Freshman-sophomore year of high school was the worst times for me. I was not confident in myself, I didn't know how to talk to girls, and I was too clingy. After having a girlfriend for ONE year (that's a long time to have a girlfriend in high school) sophomore year - a little less than my junior year, she cheated on me due to me not even have KISSED her. I was not confident in myself when I was given so many opportunities to make a move. After that, I changed who I was. I'm now a lot more confident in myself, I talk to any girl I want to, and I've learned the ways of hitting a home run to the girls I am committed to. Now, I still ask questions in innuendo as sometimes you need advice from others, however, I've always loved helping with innuendo related threads to users in need.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Innuendo

Position towards the LGBT community: To be honest, I prefer not to get myself into the LGBT community. I am not for it, then again, I am not against it. I just choose to stay away from that subject as it doesn't really interest me much, and if someone chooses to be LGBT, then that's good for them.

Notable Threads (if any): N/A

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I know I have great experience when it comes to innuendo, and would love to continue sharing that with others.

Reason why we should accept you: I believe that I have a story, and with my story, I've learned from it MYSELF. I got no help from others, and it was a very big struggle for me. I was able to finally overcome my huge fear, which was at least getting first base with a girl. After that, I realized how easy it was to talk to girls and really go far with her. In my opinion, I believe most girls are basically the same. They all act the same, and they are all great. You just need to get them out of their comfort zone to experience that, and when you achieve that, then that's how you know that you've just got the girl you've always wanted.

P.S. Sorry for such a short application. I wish I could add more, but I just really felt like this would be enough; you understand my story and who I am, and how I was able to overcome it. If you have anymore questions, feel free to PM me. I would love to answer them ?

About yourself: My irl name is Yuniór (everyone just calls me Jr because it sounds less stupid) and I am a sophomore in college. I'm very much into music and spend endless hours listening to music from various artists on my bed when I have free time. I also play a few instruments myself and even did a few small concerts, recitals, etc... I'm of Hispanic background specifically Mexican. I've been living with generalized anxiety disorder for almost a year.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Emotional Health!

Position towards the LGBT community: I'm not for but I'm also not against. I am no one to judge another person. I have a best friend who is gay and I don't judge him at all. I feel that everyone has the right to pursue and achieve happiness in any way or form.

Notable Threads (if any):

A Guide To Dealing With | Anxiety Disorders | Panic Disorders | Depression |

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo:

Afrer all the shit I've gone through, I can say I know almost every trick anxiety can play on you

I could honestly that the three months after my first ever anxiety attack were absolute hell. I contemplated suicide simply because i just couldn't take it anymore. I was having 4-5 panic attacks lasting ~1 hour every single day for three months. I couldn't even leave the house because I was depressed and scared of having an attack in public. Eventually all this led me to become hypochondriac. I started worrying so much about my heart thinking I had some sort of heart disease. I took several EKGs because I just didn't believe they were accurate. They also performed a couple of echocardiograms and they all came back good.

Each panic attack was entirely different and unique. They also each started to become more severe in terms of symptoms that came up. Rapid heart beat, chest pain, shortness of breath, etc.. I couldn't stop thinking about it. I soon started to think I was going insane, I thought that I was going to lose my mind. I had sleepless nights because I would start having insane thoughts while trying to sleep. Some of those thoughts just didn't even make sense at all.

It was then on one day that I decided I couldn't keep living like this. I started to go out more often, changed my diet, started to exercise and decided to take a break from computers, TV, games. In those three months I lost 30 pounds from not eating (depression) / exercise. I started noticing a change. I no longer had panic attacks, I thought less about my health, and I was no longer afraid to go out.

To this day I still have GAD but it isn't as bad as it once was. I can go on about my day without a problem and live a normal life. I go to school and work and don't really feel anxious much. It's still there but it isn't as severe.

Reason why we should accept you: I feel that you should accept me because I have always been a serious member in the forums. I also feel that I would be a great asset because I can talk to someone who might be in the same position as myself or even worse. I myself wished I could talk to someone who understood me in my hard times. I did go to a psychiatrist/therapist but they didn't help me at all. They just gave me clonazepam (Klonopin) and sent me on my way.

Thanks for looking at my application and best of wishes for the other applicants.

About yourself:

In regards to the group, I'm a person who has experienced a lot in life.. So I usually am like a therapist to people I know. Trust me man, when you get to know me, I'll treat you like Kanye treats Kanye because I most likely care if I answer your texts at like 3 am. I am a great, cool, funny, and very handsome person also, so there's a good chance girls fight over me irl.. Maybe online too.

Nah, for real though, I guess in general I'm a nice person who likes helping people be happy. On a scale of 1 to Pharrell, y'all deserve to be Happy like Pharrell. I also have an amazing sense of humor. It's weird because I'm usually not very serious, but when I need to be, you can be dang well sure that I can keep it one hunnit.

Emotional Health or Innuendo:

Innuendo. Don't have much experience with emotional health unless it pertains to situations that can fit under "innuendo."

Position towards the LGBT community:

What people are, that's their decision. I accept generally everyone. I don't care what your sexuality is. If you're cool with me, I'm cool with you. I'd probably still feature you on my mixtape either way. "Underneath it all we just the same." - Machine Gun Kelly.

Notable Threads (if any):

Pertaining to innuendo, none. Anything I've wanted to post (support wise) has been done as support threads.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo:

Emotional health, very little to be honest. Innuendo; a lot. As mentioned, I'm 25, so I've had my share of relationships, and life experiences. I've honestly dealt with it all. My friends will text me or message me late at night, and just ask me for advice with a girl. I'm always there to help. Usually when I tell them something to do, or what might happen, it usually turns out the way I said. I've learned to read people fairly well, understand situations, and learn how they'll play out.

I've actually fixed quite a few relationships by just guiding one of the people in the right direction. If it hadn't been fixed, I could almost always tell the person how to initiate a conversation with the next girl or boy they like, and what to say/do to make it last.

Reason why we should accept you:

Ain't gonna BS it; for the reasons above. Adequate experience in said area(s) of innuendo.

I actually feel bad for people who are having different issues in their life, so I'd like to help them as much as I could.

It sucks not knowing what to do in certain situations. It sucks being depressed because of some stupid crap some girl or boy did. I feel you "Brothers," I really do.

So why not accept me so I can provide the HF squad with the proper ways to handle things, and get through tough times.

Think about it... If a complete idiot like Donald Trump can get people to vote for him, you sure as hell can straighten things out. And I wanna be there to help.

Also, if you'd like I can provide screenshots of Facebook convos, and/or texts of what I've done to help different people (obviously via PM).

PS. Sorry for the bad formatting, I'm on my phone.

Position towards the LGBT community: Relatively indifferent, but more towards positive. It doesn't really bother me what the LGBT community does just as long as they don't do retarded things and make life worse for heterosexuals. Equality for all.

Notable Threads (if any): Not really notable, but it's something. It was a joke at first but I actually like to help people. Click here.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: Most of my experience with it comes from personal and giving advice to friends and people on HF.

About yourself:I have been studying pick up art and self help for some years now. I have concluded after much reading that the world as time passes will get even more free sexually.Old religion advocated emotional connection among their members due to limitations regarding sexual safety and proximity. Nowadays, health experts can provide people physical connection with safety. So I believe that a person to be in harmony with this world he/she has to study physical connection faithfully. I know that what I write may seem unnecessary but to me it is a way to understand what is going on around the world in a grand-scale. I probably overgeneralize but it is what helps me.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Emotional Health

Position towards the LGBT community: Sometimes I am attracted to guys but in my country sexuality is a minor issue. Most people here are too troubled by the financial crisis and they don't bother about anything else. So sexuality is a minor issue to me too. Emotional health is the first priority.

Notable Threads (if any):I do not have any notable threads in emotional health although I am planning on writing an article on the psychological aspects of marathon running.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I have pretty much experience in emotional health. I have read almost all self help books that I could find. For some years I was reading more than a self help book a week. I know this sounds like a lie, but it is definitely possible because most self help books are recycling the same ideas. That intense reading phase is something that I got out of the Real Social Dynamics forums back in 2011.

Reason why we should accept you: I will do my best to help guys. Plus it will help me too to help someone. It will help keep me in the right path so it would be nice of you accepting me.

About yourself:

Who am I? Well I'm pretty interesting, but I consider myself just another beautiful product of the fact that everybody is different. More specifically I'm an Intelligence and National Security Studies major at Coastal Carolina University. (dox me dun care) That would be my more official title at the moment, but at a human I am so much more. My name is Ben and I'm a growing semi-adult. I live in a major tourist town, Myrtle Beach, in the USA. I have a lively and lovely girlfriend who is studying clinical neuroscience alongside me! She's legit my world and has been for 3 years now. I really like to do outdoorsy things, but in reality from a combination of my own problems and money we mostly stay in and watch netflix. We go camping fairly regularly though, and have a big trip planned for July! My own personal outdoor hobbies include surfing, long boarding, weight lifting, and everything computers. My free time is fairly limited however due to the strenuousness of my very selective major. I read 200 pages a week on average of just assigned reading. On top of that I spend about 3-4 hours a day watching and reading the world news of every kind just to keep up. As for who I am on HackForums, I'm a floating member really. I don't have a particular section that is home to me, but I tend to float to what interests me. I often find myself in the midst of deep conversations about everything from philosophy to the wonders of love in private conversations mostly.

Well that gives you a small idea of who I am as a whole. I'm a surfing, skating, computing, intelligence student, romantic slab of meat on the planet earth.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: I would be most suited in Emotional Health, I love to talk deeply with people and I have a passion for listening to others.

The other day I was talking with a friend of mine Louis Gosset Jr. (not even kidding, pics and it happens) about the forward momentum of his Eracism foundation. (I really think the name is too corny, I do.)

Position towards the LGBT community: I'm not gay, and I could care less if someone else is. Love is deeper than having multiple appendages or not having them at all for that matter.

Notable Threads (if any):

Probably my largest thread, a journey me and several members took a long time ago:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=2637843>

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: Well I've lurked in the sections for varying periods of time, that happens when you are an active member for 6 years. I'm not very well known in either though, but I think that my opinion could be a nice input for the Emotional Health section.

Reason why we should accept you: Well I don't really apply to groups, it's not exactly my thing. However I've been exposed to a couple of members as of late and I like the kind of minds that are in this small organization. I don't think that I am in any way better than anybody who is applying, however I do think that I could give some valuable input and insight to the group. I'm also very active on the website, not so much in post count, but I tend to lurk fairly heavily. I've been posting a lot as of late in attempts to further some aspects, however I try to be high quality over quantity.

Reason why we should accept you: I don't have reasons for why you SHOULD accept me, But I think what you're looking for fits me pretty well. I run the most successful gay chatroom on Tynychat, so I'm good with people. Among my moderators, a few of them have/do suffer from emotional health issues, and I do my best to support them when those moods flare up. I'm somewhat good with seduction and flirtation, but I prefer to distance myself from the group of people that look at human beings as objects. I can't say I'd be able to help someone seduce someone they had no intentions of making something meaningful, since said situation usually ends up causing emotional health issues.

About yourself: I suffered from severe depression when I got diagnosed with AIDS. In my first thread, when I introduced myself, I mentioned something like this -- but I do not like getting personal. In my city, it's frowned upon for people to have depression and admit it. I started an anonymous support center, and helped many people get through it without them needing to go back to drugs, or anything or that sort. It was a place where people could confide in me - And I made it clear to them I wasn't doing this because I was better than them, but the same as them.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: I can do both - As I've always given advice on both. I was going to design my own thread and so this for others until I saw this, and hoped to get in.

Position towards the LGBT community: So what? Men like men; women like women; WHO CARES? My stand point? It's perfectly fine for two straight people, who HATE each other to get married, but it frowned upon for two gay people who are madly in love with each other to? It's obscene. It doesn't harm you, why do you need to take away their pride? So what? They like the same sex. They are better people than half of my straight friends. They make this world that much more amazing.

Notable Threads (if any): I know I am new, but I plan on contributing a lot of my designs and other reliable threads.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: As I mentioned above about my support group, I've had a bunch of experience with relationships that I wouldn't want to talk about personally, but to the group members. I've had my fiance cheat on me - Came home early, seen her getting plowed, and I broke the guy's face -- So, long story short, I have a lot of experience in both manners.

Reason why we should accept you: Everyone deserves a chance to show why you should accept them. All because people are new, doesn't mean the some Uber's are smarter than them, because that's not true. Why should you pick me? Well, here is the way I see it. I like hanging out with the odd kids too: but I also like hanging out with the kids who can bring change to the group.

About yourself: My peers could say I'm outgoing, comforting, helpful and a great friend, brother, son.. etc

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Either of these would fit for me.

Position towards the LGBT community: Whatever you feel fits

Notable Threads (if any): None, but I will make high quality health threads.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo:
Peer mediator at school tons of experience.

Reason why we should accept you:

I should be accepted due to me being able to make someone feel good about themselves and help them out with any sort of problems that they're facing at home or with their relationship any sort of problem. I have loads of experience with helping people alongside with being a peer mediator at school

About yourself: I am a full time college student partially running an online business as a side job to make some money.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: I can work with either.

Position towards the LGBT community: I'm not a part of it, but I know people that are a part of the LGBT community and I'm all for everyone getting the rights they deserve (whether they want them or not) and as long as they're not infringing on my rights, then I'm okay with them.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: When I was younger in high school I had stress-related depression. I understand what suicidal thoughts and actions look and feel like. I also know how to overcome such emotions. I took two years of AP Psychology in high school and I also took the Psychology general education course available at my school.

Reason why we should accept you: You should accept me because I'm a valuable member to the group and the Emotional Health or Innuendo sections. I have first hand experience with the troubles teenagers go through, and I have the knowledge and basic understandings of how to help people in need.

Thank you for the opportunity.

Position towards the LGBT community: Indifferent. I support their right to be who they are, freely, without persecution.

Notable Threads (if any): Emotional Health thread I posted back in 2014. I'm always willing to help.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I am no doctor or therapist, but I have been dealing with mental health for over 9 years now. My mother was diagnosed Schizophrenia and I have been there for her every single day that I could. I understand the pain, the suffering, and the trickle down effect it has on everyone around. I have found ways to cope and deal with the struggle. I have also dealt with anxiety my whole life and understand that its not easy to deal with, but It can be done with the right advice. Mental well being is one of the most essential aspects of our lives, and without it life can be quite tedious and exhausting.

Reason why we should accept you: I am always willing to give advice, or even just listen to those who are struggling, feel lost, or just need the attention. I've been in all of those positions and I know how much of a relief it is to have someone who is there to listen.

Thank You,

About yourself: I want to help people out. I got some experience dealing with girls, girl issues, depression, I studied psychology and worked as an assistant in a clinic for a while. I understand people and their problems but in no arrogant way.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Emotional Health but I can do both if the need comes. I feel like I can be pretty good at comforting people. I helped my girl out of depression and had a positive impact over the lives of many people with simple words.

Position towards the LGBT community: I believe love is a concept that goes beyond what our sexual drive dictates. You can love someone in a stronger sense than platonic love based on how well you go along together, how much you like them as persons and not concepts. I am not a fan of people acting kinky, in all sexualities that is, and I believe that love itself is a very pure concept. With that in mind, if you got two people on the internet and they communicated and had a thing for each other without mentioning their sex, and let's say that those two persons were males, would it be something wrong? I don't think homosexuality is a disease or something that's 'wrong', I have experience dealing with people who were in a closet crisis and helped them come to terms with what they had from repressed thoughts and experiences.

I want to do good among people, regardless of their sexuality. To be quite honest, I really don't know much about gay/lesbian relationships, I just find it cute whenever I hear about two people having a thing for each other, and the mention of 'gay' or 'lesbian' has very little effect over my judgement. I know that if I was gay, I would want to be treated fairly because my sexuality would not define me as a person.

Overall, gays are cool, lesbians are cool, I see persons and not sexual qualifications in them. As long as you keep what is intimate in your pants or in bed, and as long as I do not get involved on a personal level, then I absolutely do not mind and encourage people to pursue happiness.

Notable Threads (if any): None, I just advise people because I dislike talking too much about myself, although I tend to use examples from my own experiences but not going too much in-depth.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: Emotional health: Studied clinical psychology, didn't complete my master but I do know a handful of things, dealing with depression, dissociative episodes, making people feel safe and stable mentally. I want to make something clear; the midst of which I come from is a very... disturbing one. I tend to deal with people who have very bad situations in their heads and require psychotics, and it makes me very glad to be able to help them without them resorting to meds instantly, making a change in people's lives.

With that being said, and not to flaunt my ego, a lot of people told me that I had a positive impact on their vision of life. I believe that I am not wise but experienced, and I wish to share this experience, and joining the group as such a figure would encourage me to take that role to heart a bit more.

Innuendo: I don't encourage the physical approach to a lady as much as I see them as precious jewels that need to be understood and in some ways seduced before moving on to a proper approach. Sex is something, understanding is the key to a good relationship in my regards. I'm in couple with a very... amazing person, who tends to be super depressed and underestimates herself, which taught me a good deal on how to deal with women.

As when it does come to 'sex' and being touchy, I have some experience from various relationships and can answer just about anything as I live with my lady friend.

Overall, I feel qualified to give advice due to my experience.

Reason why we should accept you: Please give me something to do on HF.

These contributions are not really relevant to emotional support, but I am hoping to use this group as motivation to provide this type of support.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo:

When I was a teenager I was clinically depressed for around 3 years. Through medication and a change in how I approached life, I was able to stabilize my emotional state. I am still very mindful of how I am doing and ensure that I tend to my emotional and mental well-being.

Man... what a time to be alive <3

Username: Febreze

Age: 19

About yourself: I'm yet a mere boy that's travelling through time. There's honestly not much to be said about myself. If I'm going to be honest here, I'm not even quite sure why I'm filling out this application. Screw it though, right? Do the things that make you happy, in the moment. I'm a 19 year old kid from a good family. I used to be afraid to be alive. I spent all my life, before my teens, moving from home to home. Before 2016, I never even thought about my soul, or about being a person that contributes to the well being of others.. Of course I've always wanted others to be well, but never actually had it run through my mind. I'm becoming slowly and slowly more spiritual and in contact with my soul. I'm not against/for religion, but I'm open to it all. I'm open-minded. I'm positive. Sarcastic. Loving and caring. Emotional to an extent, depending the context. I smell good. Check my aura bruh.

I've spent years questioning myself and my motives and I've spent years understanding what it means to be ALIVE. I used to get bullied in elementary and middle school but eventually gave in and just laughed it off. Don't give in. I'm not necessarily the best when it comes to advice, or when it comes to helping someone advance themselves. I'm still working on me but, in the mean time, why not help others too? I love people, I love animals and I love nature. I personally believe people should enjoy their lives and realize life is....beautiful. Because it's taken me my whole lifetime to realize that. People should know this when they're young, and FULLY understand that whatever obstacle life throws your way can jumped over. LEAPED OVER. F*cking FLOWN over. When that obstacle is blocking you, f*cking take a breath, let your wings spread out and fly over that cock sucker. Sometimes our wings don't spread, but that's okay. Things take time. Eventually your wings will come and you'll overcome the obstacle.

Don't be a slave to a screen. Don't be a slave to society. Don't be a slave to the lies. Be ALIVE. Word hard and be YOU! Create a cake and eat it.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: I'm not psychotherapist nor am I qualified in any way to be one but, I'm in control of my emotions. There has been points where I've lost control of them(relationships, pet dying), but that's natural human emotions. Innuendo for sure.

Position towards the LGBT community: Lesbian? Cool. Gay? Cool. Bisexual? Cool. Transgender? Cool, but there's only two genders. If you're born male, you're male. If you're born female, you're female. I honestly don't mind what people are or what they embrace. Like I said, I'm open-minded. Just don't try to push anything onto me. I'm not homophobic in any way. I'm a heterosexual male and I don't appreciate having people's views shoved down my throat. People have their own opinions.

Notable Threads (if any): Not necessarily...

How to make homemade febreze
You are Great. Find Happiness. Breathe.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I guess I have some experience regarding innuendo. I've only had one actual relationship. I've never lost anyone close to me. I've done some drugs. I'm very personal and sexual(though I've lost my magic over the past year due to finding myself), so I've got some experience with innuendo. I've used the innuendo section to vent various times.

Reason why we should accept you: I'm an introvert and it's hard for me to connect on a personal level, so I truly believe this group could potentially help me with this. Getting to know people(even if it's the internet) and working on my communication/conversation skills. I'm kind of awkward, but there's no shame in that. We all have our flaws. I'm an amazing person who will help anyone with any problem of their own. I'm a great listener.

Extra: Make sure to Breathe Happy. <3 To whomever that is going over this, thank you for taking the time to read this. If you're struggling, find a way to take the pain away: Music, art, writing. It's okay. Love yourself. Don't be stressed. Fuck feelings and keep your vibes L I T. Have a wonderful day and good luck to anyone who takes their honest time to apply to this section of The Brotherhood. Psuh duh.

I just recently came back from a fairly inactive hiatus, only coming back to update on my transition thread. I also was part of the writers group for a while, doing the Headlines section.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: I'm quite good at both, the Innuendo section was where I posted the most before it got removed and all the posts were junked and then the section was revived again. I've been giving relationship advice in real life, acting as if I was some sort of Dr. Phil, to many of my friends and I don't see why I can't do that here as well where most people's primary problems are reading girls' signals or finding gift ideas for special occasions.

Position towards the LGBT community: I'm very active in the community, have my own Wordpress blog that has 23,000 total blog views (<https://dearcispeople.wordpress.com/>) and I recently started in January 2016. I've also been published a few times in the Huffington Post Queer Voices section after one of my articles went viral with over 10,000 views and got noticed by an editor. Age: 19

About yourself: I'm a young adult who was born and raised in California. As being raised out here I've come to realize it's a very social city I live in; thus, leading me into multiple relationships with different people. I've been in a relationship with a few different girls passing six months to two years. From being in all of these relationships I've learned how to build myself up when I get broken down by people. Alongside being an emotionally strong person I'm also physically active. For instance I love going down to the beach and going surfing, fishing or simply meeting new friends. But, not only do I like going to the beach and outdoor activities I also love indoor ones too; for instance, gambling online, meeting new people on video games/chat sites, gaming, website designing and doing anything to make myself some extra money.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: My emotional health overall improved over the years. The ways that helped me improve my emotional health would be by going through a bunch of emotional rollercoasters with various people throughout my life. An example of this would be break-ups and to me those are one of the biggest emotional rollercoasters you'll experience in your life ... next to death of course. With me being with various girls and having problems like getting cheated on, girls moving to other countries, girls parents not approving me and just them plain getting over me as time went on; more-so, have helped me become a more emotionally strong individual. Not only that, but I've gained the ability to help others around me take the things that I learned from my hardships and put them to action during their times of hardships.

Position towards the LGBT community: I have nothing against the LGBT society. As a matter of fact I think it's a good thing that they're people out in the world trying to express their voice to defend a situation. I may not think this is the biggest issue we should be fighting against in the world, but I think it's something that should be brought up and fixed ... afterall it's 2016 and LGBT have all been around for so many years.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: My experience with emotional health goes into a deep state. I've had many emotional problems myself over the years. With me having my parents get divorced when I was at the age of 9 I had to learn how to cope with things a lot sooner than most kids my age. The reason for that is if I didn't I'd never be prepared for what was coming my way when I turned 12 ... my mother and I got evicted by her own mother who we were renting our house from because of that my mom and I were forced into a house with her boyfriend because we had nowhere else to go. I had to learn how to get over losing friends I had since kindergarten up to 7th grade, I had to learn how to transition into different schools, and most of all I had to learn what it's like to not be in the same house, bed or room that you've been used to since you were a baby. But as time went on I kept my head up thinking all my issues would eventually be fixed, but they weren't because at the age of 15 my left testicle twisted causing the circulation of blood to stop... killing my testicle and forcing the hospital to remove it. (Yes I got one nut and I'm happy with my life) Now, with getting one of the most treasured things on a man's body taken from you this is what nearly killed me. I had suicidal thoughts to a point where I almost did kill myself and went to a doctor to be prescribed lexapro (anti-depressant). But all this anti-depressant did for me was make my issues worse and worse as the days went by. Shortly, after realizing the pill was just making my issues worse I stopped the pill and ended up dropping all doctor prescribed medications. I now live on marijuana and have for the past 5 years and all I can say is I feel so much happier with my life.

Reason why we should accept you: I believe I should be accepted because I am someone who can relate to most problems people are having emotionally. With me having many issues that have come up in my life I had to learn how to become stronger and not do things like suicide. Alongside that I've helped multiple people in my life who were on a path of committing self-harm snap out of that phase and make themselves into a better person. So, why should I be accepted? I should be accepted because I'm going to make sure people are having their emotional problems fixed by using my true empathy/sympathy to relate to them.

About yourself: I've been in a relationship for almost 5 years now, most of which was long-distance (and will be long distance for another academic year). I've been through almost every high and every low one could experience, be it emotionally, financially, physically, etc. Throughout my relationship, I changed a lot regarding how open I am with my feelings - and I learned to speak up when I need to. I've evolved as a person drastically through our times of distress, molding me into a stronger person who can understand how to give and take equally in a relationship. Before I met her, I was an emotional wreck. She was actually the one who saved me from suicide and I've maintained that I still owe her my life. I was plagued with clinical depression in from 8th grade to 10th grade and refused to take medication for it. Nearing the darkest episodes of my life, I began to realize more and more about myself, my passions, and what I want in life. I take everything I learned during those years as lessons in life that I'll never forget.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Both

Position towards the LGBT community: Go for it. Be who you are.

I was not active in any other section except for WebCon, Premium Sellers, and SRPP. However, I've stopped all my merchant and web services to set aside time to learn and teach (and mess around) in various subforums.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: Near to 5 years of a primarily long-distance relationship. We've also had a lot of sex. Probably going to marry this girl. As for emotional health, here's the jist of my life sob story. I pretty much grew up alone in a traditional tiger-mom household. However, my dad did consulting so he flew around a lot and was never home. I was essentially raised by my mother until middle school, when she got menopause and pretty much stopped giving a shit about me. Since then, I became financially independent and started generating my own income from 7th grade onwards. My father had also left for three years before I entered high school. By the time he came back, I was depressed (as noted prior) and not in any state to appreciate everything my father had done for me. I did not understand, at the time, that he had to leave in order for our family to stay afloat financially. I've had a lot of experience with childhood neglect and physical abuse. High school and onward, I lived off my own money and took my university loans out in my name. Right now, I still owe a little less than 100k to the bank, so I know a just a tiny bit about financial struggles (/sarcasm).

Reason why we should accept you: I've recently freed up a lot of time since my last 8 to 9 month vacation ban. I'll have this free time for a few months so I decided to become active on HF again - but not as a merchant. I'd rather enjoy the community and help out where I can. The quality of some of my posts may not be top notch, but I've had no real motivation to type formally. If I were to be accepted, I would ensure the reputation of The Brotherhood would not be tarnished in my name.

Gender: Male

About yourself: I'm 25, attending college for English creative writing and Military history, then I will be attending law school.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Emotional health.

Position towards the LGBT community: Neutral supportive

Notable Threads (if any): None that haven't been deleted since 2009.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I have experience with Bipolar disorder, Anxiety, depression and emotional/mental/physical abuse. All of these are things I've lived through or someone close has experienced giving me insight into these areas.

Reason why we should accept you: When I am having trouble with depression I often find that talking and helping others is the best way to help myself.

About yourself: I'm currently attending uni for business, and do various online work for money. I love change, I try different styles and haircuts frequently to keep things fresh. Hobbies include gokart racing, sport bikes, the club scene, singing in the car, horror/suspense/mystery movies, all kinds of music, camping, drinking at the cabin, and most importantly every time of pickup: mainly cold-approach.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Innuendo, but I feel like relationship advice falls under emotional health and I can offer that as well. I've been thru some tough ones.

Position towards the LGBT community: Neutral; doesn't affect me.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: I do pickup on a regular basis; whenever I'm out doing shit, I always talk to the girls that catch me eye. I'm constantly actively learning new things and I love everything about the game. Pickup has been a huge part of my life and it has definitely gotten me closer and closer to being the best possible version of myself.

Reason why we should accept you: I love talking about PU, learning new things, and bettering myself every day. I will never preach something that I haven't experienced or field-tested myself. I strive to improve, and I will always accept advice from others as well. I don't do PU to get laid; I do it to better myself as a person, strengthen my core confidence, widen my social circle, and make myself happy. I have a blast doing PU, no matter what the outcome is. PU has improved so many areas of my life and has saved me from a lot of rough times, and I want everyone else to experience the same feelings and changes that I went through. The advice I offer is honest, straight forward, and comes from my own personal experiences. I will tell you when you're being a little bitch (I've needed this more than I'd care to admit), and I'll also tell you when what you're feeling is perfectly normal. Either way I'll help you out; I gotchu fam.

Username: Maxie

Age: 17, turning 18 in a months.

Gender: Male

About yourself: 17 year old, had a fucked up childhood, faulty (most likely - according to current psychologist) with Aspergers Syndrone at 9 and moved to a school for people with ADHD, depression at 13 (put on medication aswell) and had eating disorders, 14 diagnosed with bipolarity type two and put on medication for that, 16, quit medication for bipolarity, only taking anti-depressants, basically turned my life around, graduated "high school" (Swedish) with top grades and starting "College" one year earlier than supposed.

Emotional Health or Innuendo: Emotional Health

Position towards the LGBT community: Very positive.

Notable Threads (if any): Not any, as I have not found a reason to be active here for a while, but this might be a good one.

Experience with emotional health and/or innuendo: My entire life, been helping friends out since forever, my girlfriend got ADHD aswell as being emotional instabile.

Reason why we should accept you: Probably because I am experienced and very down to earth, also generally accepting.

On a sidenote, this was written from a mobile platform, I therefore reserve myself on typos. Generally I have experienced a lot of mental illnesses either first or second hand. But I will always recommend visiting a professional in first hand; but will offer advice and support to anyone that needs it.
