

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Single sign on between wordpress and mybb

Black Devil - March 11, 2016, 10:48 am

I've gotten myself in quite a predicament. I'm currently hosting a wordpress frontpage but with a MyBB forum, and i want my user to be able to sign up on either page and still be able to sign in on the other without having to make another user on that website. I've been looking around and was not able to find any thing helpful on the subject. So i was hoping that some of you smart people in here could help me out.

My host only allow me to have 1 mysql database so it has to share that database.

9/11 - March 11, 2016, 10:50 am

Just change the registration link on the WordPress page to the mybb registration link.

(Mar 11, 2016 11:48 AM)Black Devil Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've gotten myself in quite a predicament. I'm currently hosting a wordpress frontpage but with a MyBB forum, and i want my user to be able to sign up on either page and still be able to sign in on the other without having to make another user on that website. I've been looking around and was not able to find any thing helpful on the subject. So i was hoping that some of you smart people in here could help me out.

My host only allow me to have 1 mysql database so it has to share that database.
Does that work out for you? If you want I can do it for you If you don't know how.

Black Devil - March 11, 2016, 11:36 am

(Mar 11, 2016 11:50 AM)Maihym Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just change the registration link on the WordPress page to the mybb registration link.

Does that work out for you? If you want I can do it for you If you don't know how.
i will give that a try now. i'll let you know how it goes!

Uriel Septim - March 11, 2016, 2:40 pm

Also, you can set a MySQL trigger to create a mybb acc whenever someone registrate on the wordpress frontpage with all the information already provided.

Or change the wordpress query to do it at the same time.

You'll have to deal with the password salt tho.

Trigger : <https://dev.mysql.com/doc/refman/5.5/en/trigger-syntax.html>

Salt : <http://community.mybb.com/thread-75972-post-1080642.html#pid1080642>