MathiasHansen - March 12, 2016, 4:43 pm

IF YOU'RE DOING A DEAL WITH THIS GUY AND HE TOLD YOU THIS IS RESOLVED, HE'S LYING. I WILL UPDATE THIS THREAD WHEN THIS IS RESOLVED.

Status as of, the 13th of March: Unresolved – $40.00

March 13th, 2016 Update

Display name as of date: Champion (UID: 2540993)

He is still using various excuses to protect his image, but has been caught up to all his lies.

Alibi 1: Champion claimed he wasn't home, he was at his aunt;

(Mar 12, 2016 05:43 PM)Champ?on Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dude. I'm at my aunt's house where my phone is connected to her Wifi. She has bright house. Come on now. Fucking Pink Panther.?

My PS4 isn't at my aunt house therefore I cannot even check if the code he sent was legit.

The issue with this lie is sadly that he has been proven otherwise. He stated he was on his phone, though through an IP Logger he was shown to be on his computer. At first he stated he wasn't at home, on his phone-connection, until Orgy proved him otherwise by fooling him into clicking a 'fake' link on his website, which in fact was a IP Logger, he could easily be spotted into being on his computer.

March 12th, 2016

Hello, Hack Forums.

My name is Mathias, and recently I had been trying to sell my copy of the new game, Hitman - Full Experience, a digital copy for the Sony PlayStation 4. A user by the name of Champion contacted me stating he was interested in purchasing my copy of the game. After agreements of when and how this deal with continue, eleven hours over agreement passed, and we finally made our deal. As it seemed, he had contacted me, and when our deal was initially going to take place, he asked for my Bitcoins address (before me sending the key), and I presumed he was nice enough to take the first step of dealing. He stopped responding after I sent him the address.

A few hours passed, and he contacted me after I messaged him a few times. We agreed our deal would now take place, and then, as I sent him my Bitcoin address, he replied with a: 'Who said I was going first?'. I was okay with that, as the user is a Ub3r member and had quite a good reputation. Thirty minutes + has now passed, with him stalling me, refusing to pay me for various excuses, when his initial excuse was: 'I am too lazy to open my wallet'. That sentence annoyed me a bit, but I hang with him and kept the deal going.

He now continuously stalls me, without actually sending me the agreed funds, and keeps changing subject, such as: 'I didn't scam you, wtf' when I am trying to warn him to pay me, before I take further action. I am not afraid my patience has run up, and I am therefore creating this thread, as I feel like I do not have a lot of chances at being paid here.

To sum it all up, our agreement, payment and issues are as following:

$40.00 BTC for Hitman Full Experience

Deal kept getting delayed over a total of eleven hours

Refusing to pay me for various excuses, including being 'too lazy to open wallet'

This dispute takes place over Champion using various excuses not to pay for my providence of the game. It includes he does not know if the game is valid, which he can check himself, and so I have told him to do over the last couple of time, though, he keeps changing subject when I tell him to do so.

Proof in the below spoiler (including private messages throughout our entire deal – all form of communication was kept throughout private messages on Hack Forums, and no communication was placed OUTSIDE – click the link to get to the album):

Blows to see how someone so reputable and trusted can scam for $40.00

Orgy - March 12, 2016, 4:48 pm

Champion tried to pretend he was on his phone and unable to finish the deal at the time, but here's a few proofy things that show that Champion is in fact not at home and in fact on his home PC:

How did I scam you? I don't even have the game. You could have just send any old code or something hoping I'd send BTC real fast. Dude I can't even check if the fucking code works at the moment.

If you don't have access to your ps4, you could've just said it instead of leaving OP in the dark. Ofcourse he's going to assume that you scammed him because of all the bs excuses you kept on giving him.

Also, all this could've have been avoided if you just made the deal once you had access to your ps4.

or you know, if you hadn't been such a dick.

I have obviously been scammed. Do not trust this user under any circumstances.

Oh and the reason you're coming back to this thread is so you can make up more bullshit that will cover your ass from getting banned.

Champ?on - March 13, 2016, 4:45 am

I'm not even going to read all that shit. Lol. Damn what the fuck is all that shit. ? And you have my aunt's IP. Big deal. You got me to click something while I'm on her WiFi. On my phone. Shame.

I understand. Reading is hard when you're uneducated. Even if I did literally explain every single portion of it...

Your phone currently running Windows 10 for PC? Yo what phone is that man? Did you rip your aunt off for that too?

Who gives a fuck you're at you aunties whatsoever? No fucking one, we don't wanna hear your love story with an old lady thank you.

You bought this key, you fucking pay for it, don't even try to talk yourself out of this you idiot, shit is simple, buy stuff, pay for it.

Failing to pay makes of you a scammer and no one is believing any of your bullshit so just pay or get banned and cut the nonsense.

Champ?on - March 13, 2016, 4:50 am

Pay for something I don't have. Right? Makes sense.

The dude is ill, like really, he even stole from his own aunt.

I highly doubt I am going to get paid.

Sucks that nothing gets done about scammers, but hey, it would be a massive hassle for staff to handle deal disputes.

Sorry to hear this OP, GL with resolving this.

@Jupiter - March 14, 2016, 5:44 pm

The way "champion" is responding, really obvious he scammed. Sad to see he spent his life savings on ub3r so he can't afford a 40$ game.

Legit scam report, especially considering the amount of evidence that Orgy has provided.

This Champion kid seems like a complete moron judging by the quality of his responses on this thread.

Why the fuck would Champion accept the code from you if he knew he couldn't check it. Obvious scammer making excuses. He shouldn't of ever accepted the code if he was unable to check it.
