Thread: [\[Userbar\] Titans Official \ \$100](#)

Hydra - March 14, 2016, 4:18 pm

The time has finally come! Titans is in the market for a brand new userbar. If you think you've got what it takes to craft such a delicate piece of art, your submission is welcomed below. If not, don't waste our time and yours. The creator of the selected userbar will be compensated by yours truly and may even receive a spot in the group (don't get your hopes up). Good luck and happy graphics making.

Specifications:136x42

10k max image size

I must approve the image

No standard background image is required

No animations

Prefer PNG but jpg or gif are acceptable

Note: Payment will be discussed further once we've seen a sample of the userbar that has been selected. If you think you're up for the challenge, I welcome you to the jungle (be careful.. angel bites).

Don't understand these group userbar threads. Even when there is a great userbar submitted, nothing happens. Also to Incognito, being the leader of a group doesn't mean jack in terms of aesthetically well done userbars but ofc they can choose whatever they want.

We aren't going to pick a random userbar just because we made a thread, we'll keep looking until we find the "perfect" one. One that the majority of the group likes and agrees on. This is our third attempt or so, and we'll keep at it until we get something that "beats" our current one. What else is there not to understand?

I'm blunt and honest and most designers like that. I have nothing against doge he's a dope designer I just don't wanna see the same structure in every contest. But you're actually a flat out idiot. I'm a riptide leader because I've been designing for years and because I've been doing audio engineering for years.

Shut the fuck up, you pretentious prick.

1) Since you've been designing for five years (bullshit detector is going haywire on this because your work is substandard, derivative, and generic), I would've thought you'd understand the value of no-shit blunt feedback. Perhaps you prefer a hugbox where everyone just tells you how great you are. Hm. Good luck improving with that kind of attitude.

2) Prada is a fantastic audio engineer, lyricist, and musician. He's also a great designer, even if he doesn't share much of his work on HF. I don't shower people with false praise, because mature designers prefer Prada-esque blunt feedback over bullshit (look back to the days of fbn for proof if you need any more), so I'm not just saying that to back him up. He's much more creative than you are, and that's why he's leading Riptide. Meanwhile, your work looks like every other store on HF, and it's blatantly fucking obvious you're just in it to make major bank from selling $10 knock-off thread designs for ebooks. Lol. Also, I'm sure Versace's DMCA people would be delighted with you ripping their intellectual property. Nice creativity! Pull your head out of your ass and learn that derailing a graphics submission thread with random and baseless streams of abuse directed at someone better than you has a tendency to backfire.

Dear all: there have been some really nice entries so far! I think I can speak for the others when I say that we're looking for original, clean entries incorporating the trident and the Titans colours. That means steer clear of wings and bars that look similar to other groups! Also, don't worry about Red being banned; this contest is still ongoing and we're still going to pay out if we find what we're looking for. Keep them coming :)

Really good work, though.Link me to some better-looking tridents that you think would fit better. I'll create a few tridents based on what you think looks best. It's such a simple concept that it's a bit difficult to have a completely different design that hasn't already been made.

My problem is that I want the base to look classic and royal, yet I enjoy the modern look to the trident opposed to a standard design.
