Thread: My YouTube Journey | March

Stixio - March 15, 2016, 4:45 am

Hello guys!

So this thread might be similar to Ryan's, But I've been talking to him regarding this.

Well, I wanted to get into this for a long time, I wanted to start this once i saw channels such as (SwagyTracks, FaZeClanRadio & TrapNation). I'm a huge fan of music, and love music such as Party mixes, Trap and Chillsteps ++. So this is why i decided to get into this. I always had problems with the editing software im using, therefore i didn't get to start before now. But im on it now :)

There are a lot of channels like this. So finding a name was not easy, We ended up with the name TrapRecords (URL= TrapRecordsOfficial)

I think that's a great name. Hopefully we can bring some active visitors to this channel, I will be uploading daily.

You can of course submit songs that you want to be uploaded.

Latest upload:[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=w4WQ9ewDGYo&feature=youtu.be>]

I will be trying my best to spread this around, But if you have any ideas on how i can do it better. Leave a comment below, or feel free to send me a PM.

Also, don't forget to leave a sub, like & comment on the videos if you feel for it ?

Free advertising and good music mate.

Reddit, all social medias, articles for backlinks, relevant videos. Just get yourself out there. Good luck young grasshopper. Remember "After every succesful person, there is alot of unsuccesful years".

I've been running a channel similar to yours (music promotion) for a few years now (since 2013.) One thing I would recommend doing is emailing labels and asking to get on their promotion list. It's a never ending string of music that you will not have copyright issues with. Also, if you watch music festivals, upload sets from them. That boosted me from like 100 subs to 1,000 in a few days. PM me for tips if you want, I currently have 3.5k subs and 850,000 views.
