

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Rate my photography

chase. - March 21, 2016, 9:30 pm

Rate my photography on my port most are taken with my iphone 6 or a nikon coolpix l440. Planning on upgrading to a T5i when I get money

Portfolio

Malitia - March 22, 2016, 2:04 pm

Most of them are absolutely amazing, Great work with the shots keep it up :)

chase. - March 22, 2016, 7:01 pm

(Mar 22, 2016 02:04 PM)TimTheTatman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Most of them are absolutely amazing, Great work with the shots keep it up :)

Thank you!

crown - March 22, 2016, 7:03 pm

You can tell when they're taken with an iPhone 6 or a auctal camera.

I got a CANNON REBEL something it's a good camera for being an older model.

GL.

chase. - March 22, 2016, 7:05 pm

(Mar 22, 2016 07:03 PM)the0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You can tell when they're taken with an iPhone 6 or a auctal camera.

I got a CANNON REBEL something it's a good camera for being an older model.

GL.

Yea all in California are taken by a camera but otherwise rest are on phone

crown - March 22, 2016, 7:07 pm

(Mar 22, 2016 07:05 PM)chase. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yea all in California are taken by a camera but otherwise rest are on phone

Get a good drone and like a NICE GoPro and take some sick drone shots,
If I could I'd have someone who lived near me do some work for my channel

chase. - March 22, 2016, 7:09 pm

(Mar 22, 2016 07:07 PM)the0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Get a good drone and like a NICE GoPro and take some sick drone shots,

If I could I'd have someone who lived near me do some work for my channel

<http://ardrone2.parrot.com/> I currently have this drone haven't had time to fly it yet outside fun inside though

Anyone else have opinions and can give me ways to improve thanks

Anyone else have opinions or tips to help make my photos better

Positive - March 24, 2016, 7:24 pm

As for the landscape shots, try and get all the shit that catches the eye, out of the photo in photoshop or while taking the shot. Most of them have a bajillion things to look at and it's confusing.

Get a wide angle lens when you get your DSLR. I also recommend shooting at a higher resolution.

Latex™ - March 25, 2016, 3:42 am

These are not bad photos, but you need to make sure to straight them out and maybe download some nice apps for photography. Few of these have lots of noise and distracting things. Keep it up and you will get there ^^

;)

chase. - March 25, 2016, 3:53 am

(Mar 25, 2016 03:42 AM)latex_op Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) These are not bad photos, but you need to make sure to straight them out and maybe download some nice apps for photography. Few of these have lots of noise and distracting things. Keep it up and you will get there ^^

;)

Thanks dude I'm actually going to take some more photos tomorrow so I'll be updating big dick rick - March 25, 2016, 4:02 am

I know I am brutal, but they straight up look like some jap tourist took em.

I liked the one of the brick wall with large scale art on it tho. that was actually quite nice imo.

gnarly. - March 25, 2016, 7:12 am ngl, some of your photos really piss me off just because they're on an angle, like the bridge and the church.

pls next time spend a bit more time levelling them out.

some look pretty nice though gj.

btw i rly like ur arrow wires banner. looks fucking sick.

chase. - March 25, 2016, 11:47 am

(Mar 25, 2016 07:12 AM)gnarly. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) ngl, some of your photos really piss me off just because they're on an angle, like the bridge and the church.

pls next time spend a bit more time levelling them out.

some look pretty nice though gj.

btw i rly like ur arrow wires banner. looks fucking sick.

Yea I'm pretty newb at photography. Thanks regarding the banner

GeorgeoN - March 26, 2016, 6:14 am watch out of the horisont, its not streight :) great photos but think about composition, its seems like your just shoting Grayson :) - March 31, 2016, 5:33 pm

(Mar 25, 2016 04:02 AM)big dick rick Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I know I am brutal, but they straight up look like some jap tourist took em.

I liked the one of the brick wall with large scale art on it tho. that was actually quite nice imo.

I was just going to say this.

Always make sure your horizon line is a straight line across the image, unless you're trying to make it off centered.

With architecture, you need to watch how you take the photo, you can't just ignore half of the building by taking a photo that is not level.

There's too many things to look at in the photos, besides the landscape shots. Like with the railroad shot you have looking across the city, you could completely do without the bottom half of the image.

Kambizd - April 21, 2016, 10:23 pm

Many of them good. A couple are a little bit blurry, I'd take them out. And the Bridge one, it is dull, but it has great potential - you can greatly enhance it in post processing.

chase. - April 21, 2016, 10:25 pm

(Apr 21, 2016 10:23 PM)Kambizd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Many of them good. A couple are a little bit blurry, I'd take them out. And the Bridge one, it is dull, but it has great potential - you can greatly enhance it in post processing.

Thanks dude. I already edited the bridge one it used to be wayyy more dull

TALKINGBRAT69 - August 6, 2016, 3:52 am

Its kinda good but u need improvement nd sure u'll.BOL

softlights - August 8, 2016, 3:01 pm

I will be brute and say that I don't like any of the photos you have up.

You certainly show interest, but you will have to practice more if you would like your work to be taken seriously.

You have photos of interesting subjects, but the photos themselves are boring. They look like you just stood in front of the building/bridge and clicked the shutter. Many of the photos aren't straight. If you use Lightroom, when cropping, you can draw a line to straighten the picture. There's also an auto-straighten button which may work too.

I'm not a fan of the VSCO-looking fade in your first and last images. They remind me of Instagram filters and they don't seem to add anything to your photos.

Your second-last photo is underexposed. I would expose for the land, not the sky. For sunnier days where the sky would blow out, you could consider bracketing exposures.