Thread: New Search Engine - Pays Bitcoin to Search \(Search Trade\)

Frenzied - March 23, 2016, 2:22 am

Quote:By simply searching, users earn Bitcoin which is directly deposited into their Bitcoin wallet.

Members also have the option of purchasing keywords, which results in them being paid every time a search is made for the purchased term.

Building web and mobile apps in SearchTrade's platform rewards developers with bitcoins when a user performs a search using their app.

Vishal has been working on SearchTrade for more than two years now, exploring opportunities in creating different kind of digital assets. Keywords used on search engine seemed a perfect fit since income generated per search can be calculated with precision.

Opinions?

Owner probably earns money through paid advertisements

Seems like a pretty cool idea. Would be awesome if this actually succeeds.

Yeah, but thinking of it now it just sounds like something that would pay you really low amounts of money.

I am wondering on how well they pay? They probably pay 1/10th of a satoshi per search.

Site says: "Search Now and Earn 0.00000100 Bitcoin"

The site's incredibly slow and searches take forever. "C++ book" on Amazon took a solid 45 seconds where as a search on Amazon itself was instant.

I'm assuming by selling ads, such as Google Adwords.

Get paid to search is an old failed concept. The only part different about this site is that it pays bitcoin.

kyansvk - March 26, 2016, 3:59 am

Who doesn't want free bitcoin?... Slow site, worth a try tho.

HackJungle - March 26, 2016, 5:53 am

It look a cool idea this is the link right? "searchtrade.com"

DarindAAAA - March 26, 2016, 6:02 am

Cool idea, probably it'll work out good .

Marshmallow Man - March 26, 2016, 11:33 am

Bing did the same shit, I just remember shitloads of bots for it. Never used one tho.
