Thread: What is this bar?

Excalibur' - March 23, 2016, 9:13 am

What is the blue bar? is it something good? if yes, how do i increase it?
and how do i changethe "[user@HF:]"

Michael - March 23, 2016, 9:14 am

That bar is connected to the amount of posts that you have.

If you upgrade you can set a custom usertitle, however if you don't upgrade these are the standard titles and bars:

Edit:

[nobody@HF:] - 0 posts = 1 bar
[user@HF:] - 50 posts = 2 bars
[bin@HF:] - 250 posts = 4 bars
[www@HF:] - 1000 posts
[bind@HF:] - 2500 posts = 5 bars
[ssh@HF:] - 5000 posts = 6 bars
[root@HF:] - 10000 posts =
[gawd@HF:] - 25000 posts = full bars
[exiled@HF:] - Banned = no bars

[User@HF] can be changed once you upgrade aswell it will solely change based on your post activity and online time these factors are know, but this forum is all a mistery there may be more things to it.

Same goes for the Bar.

You can't since you're not an upgraded member.

It will be closed by a staff member soon.

Please don't go around feeding false information. Everything you said is wrong, refer to the post above yours for the amount of posts needed for your the usertitle to change for non-upgraded members. The only thing that affects the default usertitle and stars is post count.

Including the person that posted after you. I would vote for a help doc with this info and some basic info about prestige.

So how do you have 7 bars with 4k posts when 5k posts = 6 bars?

This is the default setting which applies to normal members and those with a custom userbar set as their display group, additionally

Ub3rs, Staff, and Admin - 7 bars

L33t - 6 bars

Try posting HQ responses and avoid LQ posts.

If you do however want to post LQ posts there's a chance you will get banned.

Are you sure that this is correct information? Because depending on your user-group, you have different amount of bars.?

EDIT: It's not correct as I have 500+ posts and still 6 bars.

I got it from his thread, as you can see on the link posted.

I'm pretty sure it's accurate tho.

I think I am going to make a thread about this and prestige since those seem to be common questions.

Pretty sure that usergroups (L33T, UB3R, 3P1C, custom groups) have 7 bars by default. Not 100% though.
