Thread: Writing a letter to my incarcerated cousin

Motiv - March 26, 2016, 7:17 pm

I'm writing a letter to her, and I have no idea what the fuck to say. Opinions? She's getting moved to a state penitentiary and is scared, so I figured it would be best to give her some support.

What is she locked up for?

Terrorist threats (she said she was gonna kill someone), robbery, heroin, drugs (etc...)

I went to visit, and she still seems like the kid I used to play with. I hope she doesn't relapse when she gets out.

How long is she in there for? I feel the letter can go 2 different directions depending on her time.

2 years I'd say. She did like a year in a local jail.

why are you asking us? you're the one that knows her. You should know what to say if you actually wanted to write a letter.

Tell her to stay strong and focus on learning from her mistakes... something like that.

Yeah, thinking about saying something along the lines of not forgetting that she has a child on the outside that won't want to grow up without a mother.
