Quote:Chiyo Sakura is a cheerful high school girl who has fallen head over heels for the oblivious Umetarou Nozaki. Much to Chiyo's confusion, when she confesses to her beloved Nozaki, he hands her an unfamiliar autograph. As it turns out, the stoic teenage boy is actually a respected shoujo mangaka, publishing under the pen name Sakiko Yumeno! A series of misunderstandings leads to Chiyo becoming one of Nozaki's manga assistants.

Throughout the hilarious events that ensue, she befriends many of her quirky schoolmates, including her seemingly shameless fellow assistant, Mikoto Mikoshiba, and the "Prince of the School," Yuu Kashima. Gekkan Shoujo Nozaki-kun follows Chiyo as she strives to help Nozaki with his manga and hopes that he will eventually notice her feelings.

Holy fucking shit, THAT Anime... I was reading the Manga (on Chapter 50-something) and it was already hilarious as fuck, and when I realized there was an Anime adaptation, I started watching it. Totally worth it.

Go watch it right now if you're looking for a new Anime to watch, or make it your next one. I promise you won't regret it. Never laughed so hard when watching an Anime. I'm dying every 30 seconds. Reading the Manga a bit beforehand might help too.

One question; is it as good as bakuman? it's supposed to be similar in some ways. I've loved bakuman so much; wish there was more, the first season started off real slow but as you get into the second and third you wish it never would end and there is parts that become funny as fuck.

Comedy is as good as bakuman.....even better in many aspects.

Those I would not compare them.

This is one of my personal favorites, but I never knew you watched anime.

I'm literally pissing myself more and more on every episode.

And yeah, I've been watching Anime actively for over a year now. I might be at 200 completed series, if not really close to it.
