Your Journey To Success
Issue #1: Focus & Attention

"Your Journey To Success" Introduction

Spoiler (Click to View)

Hello and welcome to the "Your Journey To Success" series. This series follows the idea that by reading these issues, you will be stepping further along the path to success. You're probably wondering right now, "why should I believe this guy?", and you have reason to be skeptical, but let me tell you that it does not matter who I am. I am nothing but a person passing on things that I have observed and learned from people who are extremely successful, people whom I have studied with great detail.

I trust that you will pay great attention to these issues and take great lessons from them that will help to guide you on the path to success, whether success means money, happiness, or anything else to you.

Focusing Attracts Your Thoughts

Have you ever been in a such a state where it seemed as if every action you took had 1000 times greater impact than on any other day? If you haven't, then I am afraid to say that you have been missing out, however, I intend to guide you on how to make these days turn into everyday, and surprisingly, it doesn't take much effort at all.

First of all, we have to think about the "Law of Attraction" and how we can apply it to whatever it is that we want. Let's say that it is our dream house that we want, then what will we do? Well, first of all, we will actually find a picture of our dream house, and I would recommend printing that picture off and sticking it somewhere where you can see it everyday. You should spend at least five minutes per day focusing on your dream house and imagining that you have it and it is real. Even go to the lengths of thanking yourself for working so hard to achieve what you have. Just pretty much imagine yourself living in it right now and notice the very strong feelings of happiness when you are in this house.

Focusing on your dream house will only attract it. What you probably didn't realize before now is that whatever you think most about and have strong emotions for is what you attract. So if you had a bad day and you're constantly thinking about all the negative things going on throughout your day, you are only going to attract more negative things into your life. The same applies to happiness and positive things, and this is something that you should take advantage of. The universe bends for you and for your thoughts and you should trust the universe to unravel a series of events that will help you to achieve whatever it is that you are aiming to achieve.

"Whatever you can conceive, you can achieve."

I know these are pretty long to read, so I plan on recording an audio version pretty soon.

I don't believe these are too long to read. If a person is truly motivated enough to become successful and achieve their goals, a few small chunks of text is nothing in the long run. I think you have a very interesting perspective on the subject and I would enjoy reading more of your content!

Oh man I love threads like this.

I have this deep motivation in me intrinsic motivation we can call it.

It's so full of FIRE.

I believe in Universal Laws as well, good post.
