Thread: Crunchyroll sucks \(monopolized anime\)

So it's become more than relevant that any official anime site that contributes to the anime producers has extreme lack of content or is delayed on releases. Crunchyroll is the only site to see updated anime within the hour. Considering crunchyroll is the only site like this I think it's safe to assume they make contracts with anime producers that allows them to get the earliest release forcing others to be a week delayed or for the anime to be affordable for them realistically.

Thoughts?

I got banned off crunchyroll tbh.

Just use kissanime if you really want a site with mostly all the anime that comes out.

SkullCandy - March 31, 2016, 5:40 am

I just use crunchyroll because of the fact it lets you create anime lists like you can on myanimelist.net, except with these ones you can also watch the episodes. It keeps track of what episode you are on which is useful if you are taking a break on some anime, they have really quick updates and I can watch and share my progress through anime and keep up to date whether i am on my computer, phone or xbox :)

Like maybe they are assholes with it, but their service is worth it tbh.

If you're on your cellphone, check out Underanime. Really nice app! :)

It's a french website, but i personally watch animes on neko-san.fr .

But i usually download animes on kat.cr and transfer to my phone/tablet :) !

I have the crunchyroll app on my Xbox and I hate the fact that they don't have all anime.

Especially the new ones that come out.

I just like the simplicity of CR and the apps. Used to hate streaming but now its just so convenient and some eps come quicker then sub groups.

I use KissAnime but it's annoying that I have to disable ad blocker.
I used CrunchyRoll but you need premium for latest episodes.

Here's the thing they actually supports the anime studio by giving the fractions of our subscription to them!

Enzio - March 31, 2016, 12:37 pm

Does any have an idea why the crunchyroll app does not have all anime?
I have a premium membership.

I have a premium membership.
Since they're legit (unlike most websites) they need to pay for licence to stream it on their website!
Maybe they need a larger member to pay for all the different studios!

I have crunchyroll and funimation and I love them both!

Switch to uBlock origin and perhaps you won't have to disable your ad blocker any longer. I use Kissanime only for a very long time, and haven't found any reason to change that.

Studios basically get pennies out of it. Chunks of income comes from merch. Mainly Blurays and figs.

SkullCandy - March 31, 2016, 5:11 pm

I after my praising of Crunchyroll, I went to go start Fairy Tail and realized they didn't have the first series before FUNimation took over :(

Long story short I found another good site - AnimeLab, it has the Dub and Sub of so many different anime and I am loving it so far! The UI is very nice too! <https://www.animelab.com>
