Quote:The second season of Haikyuu!!

After losing against Aoba Jousai, the whole Karasuno team feels at a loss. Especially Kageyama and Hinata, who seem to be the most devastated about the defeat. However, the team soon cheers up when a chance for them to go to Tokyo appears. During their training camp there, Karasuno will meet new formidable opponents.

Season(s): 2

Episode(s): 25 per season (50 total)

Surprised that there was no thread about it. I'll create one for the first season later on. I never liked sport Anime, but this one is the exception to the line. It have everything to make it a really cool and fun Anime to watch, and also since it's about a sport a lot of people know and/or played (volleyball) it's also easier to understand I think. My little brother is a high-level volleyball player, so when I showed him the Anime, he jumped into it right away.

It's also hella funny.

10/10, I recommend.

First half I liked a lot (15/25 episodes) as I watched them 1 episode at a time as they came out each week; the last 10 episodes I watched binge as I picked up when it completed; and felt they weren't as good as the first 15 eps although they still had substance. Overall season 2 was still at least an 8 or 9/10 for me; I just really enjoyed the first half a lot more as Spoiler \(Click to View\) I believe the training camps were the most exciting parts imo all of those schools were most interesting kids and I can't wait until one day they face off again. Like fukurodoni and all of those nekoroma and all those other teams
