Title says it all.

Only dealing with long standing trusted members with no scam reports. I will search your profile thoroughly so don't bother if you scam.

ID verification may be asked to be provided

I would suggest only dealing with HIGHLY trusted users. If they open a dispute on paypal you won't get anything back as PayPal don't cover BTC<>PP exchanges. I just got fucked over 1000$+ by PayPal today and there is nothing i can do about it at all, because they don't cover it.

Of course, what I'm saying is that just showing the ID won't be enough, as its a BTC<>PP exchange. Good luck OP

I have replied to a few people that I would consider dealing with. PM me if you're interested

Wait you want to exchange the amount as a whole? That is highly risky my friend.

Microsoft Agent #3180 - April 7, 2016, 11:04 pm

I made an exchange for $500.

Currently have over $1200 available.

Where are you from? I'll if you're from the Netherlands/Belgium you can use www.bitonic.nl to exchange it to your bank, it's an highly trusted website.
