Thread: This Will Change Your Life For The Better

Zenfex - April 4, 2016, 9:22 pm

Everyone in this time wishes to be successful in life, whether that means wealth, power, relationships or happiness, everybody wants success, but there is only a few who can actually achieve that top level of success, and that's because they follow a simple rule: Thoughts become things.

What this means, is that whatever you can conceive, you can achieve and whatever you think about most with the strongest emotions, is what you will get. Let's take a few examples to explain this more clearly...

If you keep thinking about the bad things that happen to you and get yourself down about it, you are only going to attract more bad things to yourself, so let's take for example, one day you wake up and stub your toe on the door as you're opening it, after that you tend to have a bad day. However, if you wake up in a great mood, appreciating all of the good things that happen to you, eat an awesome breakfast, your day tends to be awesome...

But why is this? Because you attract what you think about, and we can use this to achieve success in our lives.

Spend five minutes everyday with your eyes closed imagining that you've already achieved that level of success that you're aiming for, picture yourself coming home to your dream house and let everything be vivid. Allow the positive energy and emotions to take over and this is what you will attract into your life.

Take my word and do this, I promise that you will be amazed at the results.

I like this, makes very good sense. Can't expect good when always thinking negative.

This forum really needs some kind of business section or something. Monetising Techniques section is a shit storm of shit methods for poor and lazy kids and the people who wish to discuss real business have no place to do so.

I'm never satisfied with my achievements because my goals are not short term.

Every day is a constant state of "fuck I have so much to do to stay on track".
I'll give this a shot in the morning.

I did it once last year st the secondary school I attended, 5 years after leaving it. I did enjoy it and I intend to do it again at some other time.

This is because you're thinking of all the negative things you're having to do to stay on track, you are attracting more of them into your life.

I don't think doing one motivational speech in high school makes you a motivational speaker, friend.

I'm attracting more stress and work into my life because I want to.

I could easily just sit on my ass and do nothing for a few weeks and be content.

Too much competition for success in society to enjoy every day.

I see what Op is saying, but it doesn't always apply.

Show me the part where I claimed to be one before you post another belittling response.
