Thread: [\[WARNING\] RazorCrypt Germany](#)

C000000000000000N - April 4, 2016, 11:13 pm

The owner of RazorCrypt got caught, his database with customer accounts got leaked.

German police came into my rooms with a search warrant, they confiscated my PC, phones everything. Luckily I didn't use razorcrypt at all.

Typing this from a friends laptop real quick. Just a warning for my fellow Hackforum users.

He's under arrest, saw his name on the warrant.

Okay got time to give some details now.

Police knocked at my door 5:50 am +1 UTC with a search warrant issued by the the german "FBI" in Koblenz.

The warrant is part of a nationwide investigation targeting the HF user "Razor" and his product RazorCrypt. His name showed up in the BlackShades investigation ~2 years ago and while searching his house they found his customer database and several finished/unfinished blackhat products.

They didn't tell me if the investigation is international or just here in Germany, be carefull whom you open the door guys.

RainbowJizz™ - April 5, 2016, 2:40 am i know how you feel, you're not alone. they had a search warrant to came into my rooms, too -.-

i never really used this tool. i'm so sick of the incompetence of our german police. they took everthing.. even a freakin' Powerbank (just because it had 2 usb ports)

Don't panic. They don't arrest everyone. They just take the PCs and stuff from you to check. They only check your house so just move the pc you done blackhat things to somewhere else (Friend's house maybe) and just give a police a pc with microsoft word(Not cracked ?) and some card games on it. I was busted too .

From the other topic imgur /HPB851c .

I have all the papers here , there are around 300 people alone in Germany who will get house visits today and later on .

As for the site razorscaner or what ever ... They have logged all ips that have visited this site to use it , the rest is up to you .

No but for real fuck Germany , bought crypter to test it and check if it can be cracked , police won't believe me that I used it for calc.exe sjp77933 - April 5, 2016, 7:20 am

So some users already know about this razor thing, but there is no clear information about it.

I will try to sum it up from the papers I got :

What is the reason for this visits ?

§202c German law "sharing or stealing private data"

13.05.2014 : the day when Razer maker was busted

They have all Skype conversations , ips from people who visited the razerscanner site.

In the letter it gives the exact date when i bought the program , from what PayPal @ , where I did send it to , the amount of $ and transaction ID.

Somewhere end of 2015:

They put all this information together and started working.

Today:

You have all those house visits in Germany . The letter says there were alone 300 clients from Germany . But no information about other countries.

(Sorry posted from a hidden Nokia)

It is a crypter, imho, it is nothing illegal like in the Blackshades RAT bust.

Nope the "FBI" . 4 people and no they were actually somewhat friendly and professional. They handed me the warrant and told me that they will confiscate my pc etc.

I did the paperwork with one guy while the rest searched through my rooms.

Nein war die Kripo. Sind mit 4 Mann gekommen waren aber eigentlich ganz nett (was vielleicht auch daran lag das ich locker reagiert hab). Haben mir den Durchsuchungsbefehl in die Hand gedrückt und dann angefangen PC etc. mitzunehmen. Alles in allem eher ärgerlich wegen der Hardware als sonst was.

Here's a brief summary of this text (<https://imgur.com/HPB851c>):

- first chapter: what laws apply in this case (probably not interesting for anyone but a lawyer)
- second chapter: police found out about their products through confiscated devices. They're also explaining what their software (crypter, binder) does.
- third chapter: They claim that their software is solely designed for criminal purposes.
- fourth chapter: Same goes for his website RazorScanner, it's only designed for checking malware.

Do a remote logout on another device + change password

But I don't think this will help , since the actual logs are still there , for maybe 1 week but can even be 3 month log

Usually they call a locksmith to open the door but if you have an extra secure door that he can't pick they will try to break it down or come on through a window.

A question for the German users who got busted , what will you do ?

My pc is clean , because it's a new one. Since I bought razor in 2013 and used it only to test it with calc.exe , I don't have razor nor the crypted calc.exe , but I have some logins from sites where I found sqli and some self made Python bruter. What should I do ? Deny everything , my good friend Google gave it to me ?

Problem is , all those logins are from German people :/

Don't deny it, but don't admit it either. Literally say nothing. From the moment you start speaking, you either tell the truth, or lie. You will give them information that will make your situation worse. The ONLY person you should speak to is a lawyer. Then, let the lawyer speak for you. Never open your mouth to a police officer, ever. It will only turn out poorly.

For example, the police ask, "have you ever used this software for malicious purposes?" and you reply to them, "No, I never have." The police then respond, "According to you, you have never used this software for malicious purposes, but you tested it to see if you could break the encryption, which means that you could potentially use those skills to break other encryption as well, correct? If you're on a site such as HackForums, where users routinely perform malicious actions, is it not feasible that just through using it, you could potentially have malicious intent in the future, if you broke it?"

See what I mean? If what you say is true, you definitely didn't use it for a malicious purpose, but just by denying that you used the software for malicious purposes, you also potentially admitted that you actively used the software. It's always best never to speak to the police, ever.

Zu den angebotenen Dienstleistungen gehörte unter anderem eine spezielle Software, die der Tarnung fremder Schadsoftware (bspw. Viren, Trojaner) diene, um diese für Antivirenprogramme unsichtbar zu machen. Die Einsatzpalette der Schadsoftware reichte vom Ausspionieren von Daten (insbesondere Passwörter und Bankdaten) über die Begehung von Betrugsdelikten bis hin zu Erpressungen. Dem Zugriff auf

International searches and arrests against global hackers and a variety of Internetkriminellen Die country central office Cybercrime (LZC) the Prosecutor General Koblenz and the police headquarters Koblenz carry out an exhaustive investigation complex against internationally active hackers that provided the so-called other cybercriminals hacking tools. Among the services included, among other things, a special software, which served as camouflage foreign malicious software (eg. Viruses, Trojans), to make them invisible to antivirus programs. The application range of malicious software ranged from spying on data (especially passwords and banking information) about the commission of fraud to extortion. The access to private and sensitive data of a plurality of unsuspecting citizens was floodgates geöffnet. In a nationwide coordinated emergency measure, an arrest warrant against the 22-year-old main suspect from the northern Rhineland-Palatinate were the early morning of 04.05.2016 simultaneously enforced and in 170 suspects 175 homes and company premises searched in all 16 states. In parallel, carried out further searches and backups abroad, among others in the Netherlands, France and Kanada. Nach a first evaluation were more than 300 computers and disks can be ensured. When an accused is also found narcotics in the Kilo area as well as weapons. Even against this accused remand was angeordnet. Under the property line of the LZC very extensive and extremely costly investigations were conducted by the Criminal Investigation Police Headquarters inspection Mayen Koblenz. Wow razor had so many customers?

Those who used fake/stealth paypals are fine or they are busted too? As someone told they got into his PayPal account and saw the transactions.

Purchasing a crypter in the united states is not ground for a search warrant.

This is what happens when you go around RATting.

The arrest of xvisceral should have been warning enough especially since the FBI got a hold of the customer DB back then, any and all info will be used to link paypals, partnerships and various other info.

Now they have an even bigger DB with all of RazorCrypters info, skype logs, emails, transactions etc, this is only the beginning of something much larger, take a leaf out of DarkCoderSC's book he developed DC for a long time until it appeared under the microscope due to being used so widely.

They will be collating all info they have to make even further arrests, so devs and skids be warned.

A little OPSEC:

Rule 1: Never reveal your operational details

Rule 2: Never reveal your plans

Rule 3: Never trust anyone

Rule 4: Never confuse recreation and hacking

Rule 5: Never operate from your own house

Rule 6: Be proactively paranoid, it doesn't work retroactively

Rule 7: Keep personal life and hacking separated

Rule 8: Keep your personal environment contraband free

Rule 9: Don't talk to the police

Rule 10: Don't give anyone power over you

Just encrypt your entire partition with AES 256 and throw away the key. (including the MBR, infact replace the MBR and display 'fuck you feds' once the computer is booted. I believe the OS starts at 0x1000 + partition physical drive 0 track 0.
