Thread: How much would a website like bustabit cost to make?

413KS - April 6, 2016, 11:10 am

I am not planning on creating a site similar to bustabit, I am just curious how much it would cost to get one up and running?

Same with satoshmine?

I know its two different sites, but what do you guys think?

Are we talking $1000+?

#Merky - April 6, 2016, 11:12 am

Well it costs funds to pay someone to create a decent site would also cost funds to have withdrawals paid out.

If you need a well build and quality it won't be cheap I'd say 3-5k siur - April 6, 2016, 11:14 am

Of course it will cost more than 1k. But there are people here doing for 250$. 50% upfront and you get to open a scam report.

TBH, the cost should be over, 10k I'm guessing, beside the creation of the site, you have monthly running cost, ads, standby funds for those that are damm lucky at winning to withdraw their winnings/etc.

I remember the owner of bustabit talking about how he invested around 50-70 btc to create the site which is pretty insane, but he made loads off of it so it worked out for him lol.

BustABit's hot wallet has over 400 BTC in it.

It would cost well over $1,000 for development and hosting + you'd have to have a decent BR for payouts.

Indeed. It looks like he is earning a decent amount on this site.

But 50-70 BTC is pretty sick lel.

I remember the owner on chat was saying if he'd sell he won't take lower than $120k in BTC

^ this, others broke hf kids hoping a 500$ - 4k deal can go get scammed or have a half assed product filled with unsafe shit. Webdev IS expensive, id say 10k + only for the backend and 5-6k for the front, then an other 5k ish for a database structure brainstorm (include this with backend).

Proliad - April 6, 2016, 7:26 pm

Dealing with so much BTC would require a very exp dev, so ~10k for the code and them some for the designs and front end.

mvmt - April 6, 2016, 7:35 pm

Easily more than $10,000 for the cost of development and the initial hot wallet for payouts. If you have the money, making something similar would be a great investment as I have heard the owner makes $250k+.

You mean bustabit owner made over US$250k profit??

If your worrying about the cost of development work, you don't have anywhere close to a large enough bankroll.
