What does this do?Changes the HF logo with specified logo

Checks logo size to make sure it is below required dimensions

Logo can't be bigger then 600x70

Why is it slow?

You can make it faster by going to here and encoding the image with base 64.
Once you get the long string, paste it in replace of the direct image.

Where do I set the logo?

To change the logo, please visit your option under CP, near bottom.

Maybe I'm just reading it wrong, but you're settings the value before checking if it's acceptable and if it's not you change it again?

You are reading it correctly. I did that because there is a function inside of another, so I can't just return false out of it. If you know what to do for it, feel free to let me know. I only know how to do it in PHP.

This is actually extremely useful, no more having people walk past you thinking you're some fucking elitist hacker.

I replaced mine with some other random forums that blends in well.

Or just hide the logo?

Yes, that's also an option, not that it makes this script any less useful.

This would have been useful if I knew about it before I spent 20 min figuring out how to do it when making my 1/2 custom theme (Based off of HF Dark Theme)

Honestly I don't think there's a need for this hehe, the only reason I find this useful is the script, because you can use the script for many more things. ?
