StayCool - April 8, 2016, 9:47 am looks like there are 20 bills in each bundle with 20 euros/pounds = 400 euro/pounds per bundle 7 bundles it seems, so  $7 \times 400 = 2800$  euro/pounds?

XeX Menu - April 8, 2016, 9:48 am

Most of you guys are guessing way too high. These are 20 notes each not like it's a $100 bill.

BlueZebra - April 8, 2016, 9:49 am

My guess is 9500 pounds
7 stacks of bills varying between 30-40 bills per stack, each bill being 10/20/etc pound
9300-10000 realistically

Etho - April 8, 2016, 9:49 am

Sorry OP but he's right. We don't care if you are rich or broke, we don't care if you are trying to make yourself sound rich because given enough time, we will see you trying to sell ebooks or asking people for mentorship later on to make money.

We could care less, good for you if you inherited a bit of money or saved up, maybe took it out of your savings from when your parents put some money away each week for you.

We only want to help others, if you need help- we will be there but don't try bullshit your way through life - great you have a business type of attitude but just stop.

people for mentorship later on to make money.

We could care less, good for you if you inherited a bit of money or saved up, maybe took it out of your savings from when your parents put some money away each week for you.

We only want to help others, if you need help- we will be there but don't try bullshit your way through life - great you have a business type of attitude but just stop.

I like this user, he is straight forward. Nothing against anyone I just like straight forward people

Sorry OP but he's right. We don't care if you are rich or broke, we don't care if you are trying to make yourself sound rich because given enough time, we will see you trying to sell ebooks or asking people for mentorship later on to make money.

I help people out here. I never ask people on here for money for any of my help.

I wrote this thread when I was in a euphoric state and felt on top of the world.

Anyone who has spoken personally to me can tell you that I'm helpful and caring towards them.
