Thread: Are there any ways to bypass admin?

Arzonesays - April 10, 2016, 6:50 am

I am currently in a state that I am limited to the things I can do. My Administrator has put a admin password / Parental control on my lap-top. I have already tried key-loggers but even those require a privilege to download.

Does anyone know a working way to bypass and or get the password without having to reset the computer and remove the password?

If so I would really appreciate the help.

Yeah, I'm wondering the same thing.

Try konboot (Google/Youtube it)

boot in safe mode (safe mode with networking if you have to be on the network to log in), then should be able to download your rat and run it and from that you should be able to keylog the computer and get the admin login. If that doesn't work boot it in safe mode again and try to run mimikatz on it. It will pull up the last 2 logins. Maybe figure out a way to get the admin to login and fix a "problem" (one you created yourself) and then use mimikatz to log their password when they finish.
