Thread: CoD Glitches: Call of Duty Glitch-ing Community :\)

Alexander K - April 12, 2016, 5:03 pm

Hello everybody, I want to share some details about my current forum I have been working on and desperately trying to get off the ground. I have had this forum and domain for 2 years and it has been a rough journey, mainly because of marketing failures. Over the past few months I have switched from MyBB to XenForo and made a lot of changes. I haven't advertised it much since then, in fact this is my first official advertising thread since then. I thought Hack Forums would be the best place to first post it because I figured there would be people here who still play Call of Duty. Many admin forums do not have that base. ? I've been playing Call of Duty since CoD 2 and have been deeply interested in the glitching scene since CoD4 but I have to admit that the last 2 years I have lost a lot of interest due to Advanced Warfare. Anyway, on to the forum, there is a lot of cooperation opportunity and I am eagerly looking for other people who would be interested in partnerships, whether forums or YouTube channels. I would be very glad if everyone here could check the forum out, give their thoughts and sign up if you like it! I am always available for chatting and talking, especially with people who have a similar interest. ? Anyways, thanks for your time and please share your feedback. Thank you.

Social media is in the footer. ?

I can also setup a email forwarder example@codglitches.com for any Hack Forums members who are interested. :)

But only for members who sign up and post. :D

An interesting idea. I like the forums layout and colour. I personally don't like the white space on the sides, but that's just me.

Thank you for your comments! What white space are you referring to? I can't see any white space but maybe you are on a larger screen? Can you post a screen shot please? I'll look into it if you could. Thank you.

I would consider it if you can demonstrate it.

I don't have plans for any staff at the moment but a great member has the potential later on. Thank you. Just isn't enough activity to justify a moderator IMO.

Thank you two. :)

dismay, sorry I thought you were referring to literal blank space. ???

Here is a very early mockup of the theme. What do you think of this? I chose to not use the background because I figured it was too much activity and I like the pattern used right now. I thought the header background would conflict.

- Since it has been a few days since my last post, I think it is appropriate to respond to my own thread. ?

Some various updates and I would really appreciate it if genuine constructive criticism could be given. CoD Glitches is also open to registration for anybody interested. Would love to have more people to talk to. ?

Thank you everybody.

GamersHeaven - April 22, 2016, 10:15 pm

Nice idea, i'm signing up for sure.

Alexander K - April 23, 2016, 8:38 pm

Assuming you were the latest registration GamersHeaven, thank you for signing up. Although if you don't make any posts most likely your account will be closed in the near future.

Thank you and please make a few connections over on the forums. :)

Thank you.

The niche is going to be a hard one to build a big community on.

capacity... how much that may be, I am unsure of. I still don't want to give up on it, I try very hard in making this forum presentable and I need help on content the most.

Thank you for your feedback Spartan. ?

I done some major renovations to CoD Glitches yesterday and today. I'd appreciate your opinions and thoughts on the recent changes and how it looks. Not 100% finished. I've been very busy with work the past couple of months so I haven't had any time to work on my forums thoroughly enough so that is why it's been such a long time since the last update. You can still sign up and be active in the community. I'm working on more member features and add-ons right now! ?

I'm fully aware. It's one of the things I plan on fixing as I add more content and such. Thank you, however.
