Neat and clean site.

Why should i use Topicked when there is 'Reddit' ?

Alterations - April 13, 2016, 8:01 am

Tell us, what is so special about your site?

Why choose one? I built it in the idea that it would be a project and after getting good feedback from other forums i decided to turn it into a website. I always wanted to build a forum but not in the traditional MyBB/PHPBB style.

Toph Beifong - April 16, 2016, 1:02 pm

Anyone want to join the conversation... God a couple of active users but would love more.

BrianKush - April 16, 2016, 8:27 pm

Looks pretty cool. Did you code this from scratch or is it a premade software?

Looks great so far, I think you need to introduce categories.

Its designed not to have categories... it uses a tag system.

Frontend is cluttered and not unique. But as you know, most of the work went into the backend. Fix up the frontend and it'd be a cool site.

Toph Beifong - April 20, 2016, 2:03 pm

Cluttered, i dont think so but everyone has their own opinion.

Megatron - April 20, 2016, 5:41 pm

You spelled responsibility wrong on the TOS.

PHP/HTML/CSS/MySQL

As for op, quick little suggestion,

Move the reply box, blow all the replies. For some reason when i opened a thread i just closed it thinking there were no replies LOL!

<http://prntscr.com/auu1uz>

Other than that im really impressed with the design, its nice and flat, and you said you did it from scratch! I wish i had a better eye for design but im stuck to using themes and bootstrap lmao.

I mean, there's a header that says replies. Is this not the case when there are no replies?

For your screen resolution, sure.

For me a few of the threads you dont see that header. So after i scroll a little i see, post reply and then back out of it to the main topics page.

It was a suggestion, op doesnt have to do shit if he doesnt want too.

I also suggest making the brand/logo in the nav bar link to the index.

Thanks for the suggestion, I'll look into moving it below but adding a prompt which will take users to the reply box when they click it.
