Thread: So I get banned, but this user doesn't?

MathiasHansen - April 14, 2016, 8:37 am

So I was banned for the past three days, for breaking the marketplace violation, though, this thread has been alive since the 23rd of March, without being banned, that is quite disrespectful.

His thread: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5213186>

And this is the thread I was banned for (junked, so only staff can see it, afaik):
<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5233425>

I would just like to know what the difference is, considering we both offered money for a decryption.

Don't say; "But his is a contest" – that makes no sense, I could also just put "contest" in the subject of my thread and then it would be okay? Come-on.

I would love a reasoning for this; I am honestly confused.

No offense to you or staff but its the law. Law is just words. Thats why loopholes exists in law. Thats how good lawyer can change anything. Deal with it.

Just report the other thread and move on. Staff probably won't take too kindly to this thread you just posted.

You can't report the thread, it is over 24 hours old. I am not pointing any fingers nor trying to be a dick about it, I was just wondering if there was any sort of special occasion as to why he was not banned.

The limit is 48 hours. PM staff with the thread if it's over 48 hours old. If you do, you'll know whether or not anything similar to your situation is disallowed.

Don't accuse staff because action was not taken, mistakes happen and things can be missed there's a lot of post going on in this forum daily.

Clearly someone forgot to report that post simply PM it to an Admin/Staff Member.

This thread is outside the marketplace so I would highly advise you to forward this to staff.

Rikk?a - April 14, 2016, 10:09 am

Staff can't see everything and its not there fault your thread was reported and not his.

Would it not have just been easier to PM a staff member? Is a whole thread really needed lol

His thread belongs in Contests which is not a violation of the policy you broke.

If that doesn't make sense to you then I see no point in explaining further. And even more so if you're not able to understand policies I'll be happy to close your account so that it's no longer an issue for you.
