Thread: Trust Scan Improvement \(#3\)

Omniscient - April 18, 2016, 12:16 pm

Not sure how many threads I've titled the same but whatever.

Today I added color coding to the results for the following:

Number of Unique Country Logins (last 30 days):

Number of Unique Login IP's (last 30 days):

Number of Unique ISP's (last 30 days):

Latest IP Matching Other Members:

Also you'll noticed I shortened it from 90 days to just 30 days. Ninety days felt too long. Unsure if 30 days is too short but we'll see.

Also added "Account Age" which displays in days, it's also color coded.

Hope that helps.

Neos07 - April 18, 2016, 12:17 pm

Account age seems like a pretty good addition :)

Mr Kewl - April 18, 2016, 1:30 pm

Matching registration and last IP: No

^ Its yellow, is it intended or should be red?

Logically its a threat, but practically dynamic IPs duh?

IMO: The days counted should be 60 days.

People can farm an account for a month? 60 days is just a little too much effort..

Intentionally yellow because almost no one is going to have them match.

Most scammer accounts are within 30 days of being compromised. They don't wait 45-60 days to abuse the account.

Account age is on Trust Scan so that you don't have to go to profile page. It's relevant to statistics because if someone just enabled their gauth 30 days ago but you see they registered 35 days ago I think that's relative information.

It only puts a green to members who are at least 1 year aged.

Vitani - April 18, 2016, 2:16 pm

Awesome to see the trustscan being improved even more. Now people need to realise that they should make use of it when dealing on HF. This is a great tool.

Caliban - April 18, 2016, 3:13 pm

I think the new Trust Scan looks dope. Good job Omni

Something else i thought of is to maybe implement some sort of system that detects scammers through sketchy post/PM activity, since most scammers PM alot of people at once and write in alot of exchange threads when they are on their scamming spree... For example Morchid sent tons of PMs that where he was asking for money.

So the sytem should be triggered if someone shows unusual post/PM frequency that is money related, so that the potential scammer account can be investigated by Staff/Admin. Or it could show up in the trust scan, idk.

Hope that makes any sense lol

I really like trustscan, the application possibilities are endless.

The amount of data available is quite a lot, it really lets us know who we're dealing with a lot better!

It would be interesting to compound all that information and for trustscan to spit out a risk rating? That's something that'd make me go "woah!" -- but nonetheless, it's an excellent Implementation, thank you admin.

On the Trust Scan page the Deal Dispute results are now directly linked to the search results of the DDDDB page. It's also now color coded. Green for 0 as defendant, yellow for 1 or 2, and red for 3 or more.

I know you could just check the database, but 100% for convenience sake would it be possible or maybe a good idea on the deal dispute line to put like "Date of last dispute" (as in a dispute AGAINST them) so you could quickly see if they have had recent deal disputes or if it was from a long time ago

This shouldn't matter. If someone scammed 3 years ago and it was unresolved, what is stopping them from still scamming? It should be like this in my opinion:

Deal Disputes (Claimant/Resolved Defendant/Resolved Defendants) e.g. 1/0/1 (then have each one specifically colour coded instead of the whole line.)

True, but theres also scam reports that are invalid for certain deals, like selling a public ebook 3 years ago has nothing to do with them being valid in a currency exchange if they have been legit for 3 years up till now. Also on the off chance that someone just didnt close the dispute, or the person who opened it got closed themself or left the forum.

IDK was just an idea lol but I see what youre sayin

None of those stastics will give you any indicator for trusting a member. Most warnings are unrelated to Marketplace. The amount of reported posts doesn't tell anything and I fear if it was in Trust Scan it would be spammed just to raise the statistic. And lots of members with Marketplace activity don't bother reporting any posts.

The TS page is not a Super Profile page. It's there for a very specific purpose and is not meant to replace the Profile page.

I think it's a nice edition, but with today's dynamic IP addresses, very few members will have the same IP as they did when they registered (especially older members).

You should leave it, but not color code it. Just my 2 cents.

True but that's why it's never red. It's only green and yellow. If it's green then obviously that's very good which is part of the intent of that line. I won't remove it. It's very low overhead as it requires no extra query.

Possibly if I can find the time. The sticky system is like 70% complete. The upgrade will require me to take HF offline maybe for up to 2 days.

Wow, it seems like yesterday you said you'll start working on 1.8.X and the other upgrades. It will be worth the wait though. Good luck

Omni and others, out of curiosity, what changes will 1.8 bring?

Great work on the TS, now only if more people used it.

If omni changing to 1.8.7 then it will come with below fixes
13 security vulnerabilities and 83 reported issues

That's very good decision
Due to dyanamic IP I had a long lists
It got shorter now

Acteda - April 23, 2016, 2:47 pm

The color codes really help out!

Thanks!

You validate your existing code. You do not reset it.

Go here; <https://hackforums.net/gauth.php>

Type in your code, click Validate code.

I like this, thank you for implementing the new updates.

Omniscient - April 27, 2016, 2:00 pm

Added RED color code to the YES if the email was changed in last week.

Nice, the trust scan feature is very handy now, and most good implements have been added to it.

Not sure exactly why only upgraded members can add Deal Disputes to the database... are we allowed to ask upgraded members to add a deal dispute to the database for us?

No, you cannot ask someone else to do it for you.

And the reasoning is simple. To avoid abuse. It's not a hard concept to understand that our Marketplace is geared towards upgraded members. If you want to be active, with full features, in our Marketplace then upgrade.

Keep this upgrades going :)
