

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Beginner Doxing Tips?

introview - April 23, 2016, 3:11 am

Hey guys, so. I want to DOX someone, and my first question is, do you know a site where I can find people or etc? Cause that'd be a BIG amount of help.

Okay so here are my questions, my questions are about what should I look for in the 'target' and where should I begin? ? How do I find them by their social media? How can I get his/her IP? How do I find what/how he looked like? Yea, so these are my question. I'd be a big help if you can reply to all of these. Cheers HF! ?

?hoenix - April 23, 2016, 7:11 am

If you actually want people to help you then I suggest creating a proper thread instead of an eye sore.

Anyways, if you're looking for an easier way to find victims by social media then I suggest using <https://pipl.com/>. This website uses search engine results and narrows it down to social media links and displays more information.

Nuclear3mbargo - April 23, 2016, 12:16 pm

In addition to Shade

1. Maltego is a grate tool, you may find it useful.
2. After finding some basic information (name, address...), you may try to find more information from government sites (e.g. request information from Cadastre online)
note that those vary from country to country

Mjc1787 - April 23, 2016, 6:09 pm

I've been able to compile some very thorough doxes using nothing but google. I would start there.

0x7FFDF000 - April 24, 2016, 4:39 am

doxing isn't a real thing, it's literally using Google and similar sites to draw logical conclusions out of aggregating results

Critique - April 24, 2016, 11:00 am

I'd look over some guides and learn from there.

That's what I did and started exploring other options.

(I used to do a couple requests for people that needed it w/ a friend from here.)

Osmous - April 24, 2016, 4:21 pm

You can find their social media by using Namechk.