Thread: \$35 for Android Smartphone with FREE service

Omniscient - April 29, 2016, 10:26 am

http://electronics.woot.com/offers/freedompop-phone-lg-volt-5?ref=el_cnt_wp_0_3

Unsure how many need a smartphone with free service but as a spare phone this is a great deal. It's $35 for the phone and you'll get...

"FREE - 100% Free talk, text and data: 500 MBs of data, 500 text messages, and 200 anytime voice minutes free every month for life"

I bought one of these before for an elderly family member and it's worked out great.

Could be nice as a spare or even someone who can't afford a monthly plan. And it is compatible with Authy and Google Authenticator. Pretty sure you must be in USA though.

Enjoy.

Description - April 29, 2016, 10:29 am

I'll probably buy this just to have around.

Xerotic - April 29, 2016, 10:30 am

I am actually going to buy this right now for a co-worker who can't afford a phone/computer. Is there any payment or upkeep that I should be aware of, or is it truly a one time payment?

Heart of Kings - April 29, 2016, 10:31 am

Thanks for the share Omni! And did I read it wrong or did you say it is only $35.

It clearly says $35 dude cmon..

And if you go to the website its $35 aswell why would you even ask that?

Truth - April 29, 2016, 10:32 am

Freedom pop sometimes have free 1GB data offers that can be used with any sprint device.

This is still a nice deal since the phone is included, thanks omni

Frankey - April 29, 2016, 10:33 am

It is USA only I think. Not sure, but for me (The Netherlands) It is not possible.

minimalist - April 29, 2016, 10:34 am

The service map makes it very unappealing but I guess that it'd be OK for low usage in an open area.

Might also be locked to the LTE network. Great value item if you're in the US though.

Then I'm bugging or something. It gave me an error while paying. Will be re-trying.

Quote:I am actually going to buy this right now for a co-worker who can't afford a phone/computer. Is there any payment or upkeep that I should be aware of, or is it truly a one time payment?

Truly one-time payment. It is not unlimited service though but for someone with no phone, no money, or doesn't need a ton of usage it's a good deal. And you can upgrade to better service for either $10 or $20 a month which is still very reasonable.

Also same deal for an LG G2 phone which is probably a much nicer phone but it's $60 a month.

http://electronics.woot.com/offers/freedompop-phone-lg-g2-5?ref=el_cnt_wp_0_2 btw Woot is a deal a day site so this offer is only for about 12 more hours and these do sell out.

And yes, this is USA only and if you're in a rural area you might not get service. You can check the service map yourself.

I'm getting the G2 as an emergency backup phone. I can use the number for a few things where I worry about being compromised.

I have multiple phones from Freedompop.

Theres always deals on there phones so don't feel bad if you missed this one.

Just be sure to read the fine print and unclick those extra boxes

I have yet to be charged anything and I had my s3 for almost a year now I think. It's nice to have a back up free activated phone with data

It was too good to pass up so I bought one last friday. It will arrive this Thursday. It should serve me well as a backup phone.

KusheKurse - May 9, 2016, 3:19 pm

I bought one of these a while ago. Its able to be rooted pretty easily and I ended up using the service (Through RingPlus instead of Freedom Pop). For having a phone always within close reach, it can't be beat. I keep mine in the car as our lifeline in case our phones missing.

Grey Goose - May 10, 2016, 1:50 am

Amazing deal! I'm planning a holiday to US, and my phone can't run on their network, so might just be buying this one, just to have incase of emergency!

Omniscient - May 14, 2016, 4:12 pm

Finally took the time to activate mine. Watch out for the $2.49 a month voicemail charge. It's free first 30 days but $2.49 a month after that. I just disabled it entirely as I really don't feel I need it. I already have a free voicemail service.

So far phone seems fine and while I haven't used the service much the calls and text went through fast enough.

Ahri????? - May 14, 2016, 4:17 pm

I currently have a backup/root device with them and the service is pretty good. My friend activated his Iphone 5S with this service and he likes it. Just too bad he cracked his display tho lol. A long time back used their USB Wimax sticks until Wimax was dumped by sprint.

goldenzzone - May 14, 2016, 5:16 pm

Woot sent me a phone already activated with the previous owner, so I could not activate it on the website. Took me about 3 hours on the phone with customer service just to get it activated with a free trial plan, then one more day so they can convert it to the free plan. What a great start lol. Hopefully no more problems from here.

Seems the base number in the phone is a Sprint number. Having some issues getting Google Voice setup. Overall things are working good though. Likely I will just email support or post in their forums for help. I don't need-need this immediately. Phone and text are working just fine.

Nariroh - May 29, 2016, 10:19 am

Great share thank you brother!

I actually bought one for that purpose as well. They rarely use a phone but need one for certain situations like when they are at doctor visits and need a ride home.

Need a deal like this to come around in New Zealand for my small business needs.

Exactly! It is great for elders or even younger children just in case for emergencies. I hope the restock soon so I can purchase some.

How does your family like it. Is the service good?

Tech - June 4, 2016, 7:17 pm

Damn that's more data than I have on my plan right now. Not a bad deal. Ill order one and check it out.

Meowth - June 4, 2016, 7:28 pm

These are currently sold out. Does anyone know of another website that is offering the same deal? I already have a phone with a plan but this could be very useful as an emergency phone

Great share!

Reven?nt - June 4, 2016, 7:30 pm

This is an extremely good deal. I will keep this in mind. Perhaps I will get tired of paying $70 a month for a cell phone and downgrade.

TRAUMA - June 5, 2016, 10:31 am

Can yo register the phone in your name?

Drizzy?? - June 6, 2016, 11:42 am

Not trying to hijack the thread, but since it's sold out in OP it should be OK. Here's a similar deal from the same provider:

aota - July 24, 2016, 11:56 pm

original link is sold out :/

EricBoosting - July 26, 2016, 6:41 am

Why does it have to be USA only :(((i want good deals in UK! Good share though!

Chicken Shack ? - July 27, 2016, 12:55 pm

posting here cause i will be getting this soon.

Omniscient - July 28, 2016, 5:45 pm

Here is a Nexus 5 Freedompop offer for $100.

<https://www.freedompop.com/offer/globalnexus5offer>

That's pretty dang good for a Nexus 5 which is a very good quality phone.

I actually bought a Blu R1 HD for $50 at Amazon during their Prime Day. Freedompop had a $1 deal for a sim card. Going to try it out.

I'm becoming slightly obsessed with multiple phones now for some reason. :(

livando - July 28, 2016, 6:52 pm

GREAT service . HOW ABOUT THE QUALITY ?

You see my collection, 4 phones activated with freedom pop and 1 with T mobile. Trying to wait for a good plan from RingPlus to take the cake. Only downside to the Nexus 5 is that Android 7.0 Nougat might be it's last update. Not bad considering most phones at that price range aren't even running the current version of android and most likely stuck on 4.4 below.

Here I was doing good saving money....and now....all I want to do is grab this deal, even though I don't need a third phone.

woot!! Nice deal! Sadly, it isnt for my country. I wish i can get this free calls cells sometime

Jay Rock - August 2, 2016, 9:50 am

Sucks cuz theyre not accepting both of my credit cards/

Jay Rock - August 4, 2016, 1:28 pm

Well this sucks lol looks like they charged for both of the times it didn't go thru. Smh charlielegend - August 13, 2016, 5:47 am

You can get a sim from Amazon. But depending on the phone you got you may need to unlock it first.

blobtown - September 19, 2016, 7:31 pm really great find! bookmarking for later. I wanna get multiple phones now too.. lol
