Thread: [\[Official Group\] Eternal For Sale](#)

Nex+ - May 3, 2016, 7:17 pm

Had fun while my run lasted, now I'm probably going to leave Hackforums for a bit once this sells as it was mainly the only reason I came onto Hackforums. Not writing an essay, keeping this short and to the point. Group is for sale and I'm accepting Bitcoin only. Drop offers below or message me, also do not be scared to post an offer even if its under someone elses, because chances are they are blowing steam or arent approved to be a owner. My group also comes with 2 sfs, not many left with those as they are discontinued.

I am also willing to help the next owner on the things I have done and are currently doing to monetize the group if he is looking for that. I have made well over 10k off Eternal and I don't mind giving the buyer some ideas and concepts I had never done due to not having the time on my hands.

Groups aren't what they used to be, spending thousands on something that will undoubtedly never make your money back, or anywhere near a profit is not appealing.

I'll get what I want. You all say groups arent worth anything more then 5k because Tommy backed out. News flash, Tommy isnt the price margin of groups, he is a buyer that was willing to pay 5k. If owners wouldnt sell for so cheap groups worth would be worth more since theirs not a supply of them anymore. If owners wouldnt need cash in a pinch and sell for less then 10k, I'm sure tommy offer would have been a lot higher then 5k and groups value would be a lot more.

What you fail to understand is that nobody truly cares about the group history itself. You are not buying a group at this point, you're buying a GROUP SLOT which will allow for you to CREATE a group with your own userbar and likes. You can do whatever you want with your group, you're not buying any rights except for the SF. Might as well rename the thread to 'selling A group' as the group itself doesn't even matter.

Literally nobody on HF cares about the 'history' or what the group used to be if the owner is a different person. Boy, I sure wonder how people are going to be bringing it up; 'hey dude! the group you own on an online hacking forum used to be crap when it was ran by a person that is not you! hah!'. Or something of the type. In any case, I don't understand how anyone is going to be deranged by the 'history' when you're literally buying a slot at this point.

It's pretty stupid if you ask me. You're literally buying a group slot from both sellers at this point. It doesn't matter 'who' used to own it except if it's someone who, like, scammed a lot because nobody likes dealing with scammers. I find the argument that 'you're gonna care if it's imprinted on a wiki later on' pretty stupid as Omni has been putting off MAKING a wiki and nobody cares about group drama.

I'm not going to be buying a group to brag about how it used to be when it was not under my direction. That would be living off glories that I did not accomplish myself, I'd be living off the pride of other people then. Pretty dumb if you ask me.

In any case, what you are doing is very much sales trashing. It would be pleasant if you refrained from posting any further as your presence in its core contradicts the rules of HF when it comes to trashing sales.

If there's no way to decrease value, so explain me if there's the possibility to increase the value?!

If what you say was true, the groups would be valued in all sales the $500 for example that is the price that Omniscient has sold them since the begginging!

So, it's logic, if the group value can increase it can also decrease. Don't say bullshit.

By the way, no one needs to sale trash or anything that you're saying, because everyone who is in the "market" of the groups or even to buy buy-ins, knows that can trust him for deals.

It can also happen what happen like did happen to the other group that two people bought the group at once and only one had rights to remains with it, I don't know all about that particular history but it's the basic I've understand...

I think you need to re-read my posts. I essentially claimed that the group itself does not matter as much as the group slot. Let me put the pieces very nice and slowly. If you buy this group, logically, you are going to want to revamp it. If you are to revamp it, then logically, you are going to change its name, its userbar and the member base. Logically, if you do that, then the group Nex is so infamous for won't have any presence anymore. With that in mind, it is very much more like buying a group slot. You're getting approved by Omni to run a group, YOUR group. Sure, if Nex offered the group as it is with no possibilities of changing it (which is what most if all group owners do...), sure, you could say the group value is going down. When people are selling groups they're implying the following: You give me a specific amount of money, in exchange, I provide you with the rights to my group and its sub-forum. It's not rocket science.

Not really. Groups went for way more because people were hyped with having a group, group owners overpriced their groups and Omni refused making more slots. You can't buy a group slot from Omni, so you buy the SLOT from other people to make your own group. It won't matter what group it USED to be, because it's going to have a new owner, a new leader, new members, new sub-forum content and new userbar.

The group value can only increase when there isn't much availability and a large demand. If everyone wants to invest in a group and if I am the only group owner who's ready to sell my group slot, then I can price it at $10,000 and wait for the next 'investor' to pay me. I'll make a swift profit off the momentary hype people have, and from then on, they can invest, resell, make more money, I don't care as it does not concern me any further.

People are not scared to lose money if it is under a new owner. If Nex was selling a leadership spot, yes, you would be very much right. While he is still selling leadership spots, I'm guessing that the owner could just kick the leaders appointed by the previous owner and blame Nex for it because that would be his fault. People don't give a fuck in the world of business, god damn it, get it right. There's benefit and benefit, no 'boo i dislike nex booo i hate nex hes a meanie'. Astonish was a shitty group owner yet people didn't give a shit when he sold his group. People are business figures in here.

I don't think sir. But sometimes I can be a jerk. But if we are both talking about this thread:

He didn't delete and created a new one again, but I could miss any other thread before this one. But this one has about 4+ pages with replies...So you might be talking about this one, at least I am.

Oh okay, I didn't know about those ones, I was talking about the one I linked above. So yes, if I am idiot for not tracking down all threads so I am sorry. I hope I am not the only idiot around here then ?

Yes, Nex is a shit head for the scummy monetizing tactics done with the group, but it doesn't decrease it's value.

I'll bid $5,000 BTC + transfer fee.

Already approved for ownership.

Seems like the most he'll get out of this group tbh

Gotten 2 other offers of 5k+, just going to wait out some time and see what comes to the table, by no means am I in a rush to sell this group so if I dont get a reasonable offer I wont sell.

If you don't the details regarding my account then don't attempt to roast me, my account was compromised, regardless I sent a PM to Omniscient about it if I'm closed I'll be out of this forum for good.

SMH at all of you still fighting over his sales thread.

Nex responded back with an EXTREMELY FAIR counter offer for a group, considering every other group wants 7k right now. But I'm going to hold off for a tad longer, give myself some time to gather the funds and decide if i really want a group right now.

J?son - May 4, 2016, 10:16 am i'll give you 12 pennies for your group. lmk

$3100 for the group in BTC.

ra1d - May 4, 2016, 1:25 pm

3k in btc.

I'm approved.

inxy - May 4, 2016, 1:30 pm

3200 and a smile for the group lmk

The run was fun Nex+. Even though I haven't been a part of Eternal for very long, I still enjoyed the time I spent here. Gonna miss Eternal, despite what everyone says trying to bash us we haven't hurt nobody. Hope to see you back here one day.

I don't think any group owner has ever lost money. Some have made more than others but that's always been up to the group owner. I think you're being a disrespectful ass. Warning issued and your posting suspended for 2 weeks.

Quote:I'm kinda just waiting and hoping that it hits at least $2.5k maybe $3k to buy at least one group.

That's your motive for being a prick. Unacceptable.

If groups did hit 2.5k. I think I'd buy them myself and close the group. So if you're interested in retiring your group and want a payout. LMK. I will consider it.

Quote:Literally nobody on HF cares about the 'history' or what the group used to be Pretty much. And that's why I personally approve all group owners.

On a side note I think groups were overpriced. I think they were so high that it caused a bit of a problem with elitism and abuse. I hope group owners never lose money but I also think it's easy for them to be corrupted when they are worth $10k each. And while I don't control the demand I do control the supply. It's not without thought that I sold a new group recently. I'd like to see some fresh group owners and a more diverse selection of usergroups. When they were $10k they were too expensive to be fun community groups. They mainly focused on Marketplace and expensive leadership positions. That wasn't their intent. Groups should have a community driven purpose or at least more than they do now.

And this thread....I'm going to close so that Nex can make a thread that's not trashing his sale. Very uncool that a few here are trashing his group sale. Those involved have correctly been reprimanded for it.
