My Rating: 8/10

What I liked most about Space Pirate Captain Harlock was the animation, for some reason it was really outstanding. In some Anime shows the background animation does not move however in this everything was active everyone was moving, it was continuously grabbing my attention.

Surprised no one has commented on this yet.

This was a great animation, very visually appealing, close second to 5 cm p/s in my book.

Very much worth the watch.

Ik exactly what you mean, I hate discovering an anime I could potential enjoy only to find an animation style that I can't fucking stand to look at for longer than 20 seconds.

Just like Ajin, I loved the manga however hate the type of animation they used, I really wanted to watch it as well.

A couple of seasons ago there were 3 animes based off of nobunaga, that all came out relatively close to each other. (like what the fuck ..?)

despite the animation style, this one became one of my favorites

Interesting. Didn't realize there was a modern reboot of the original :3
