THIS IS MY FIRST REVIEW!

Plastic Memories

Warning: Spoilers will be present

Total rating based on my opinion: 9

Well what can i say this really was a tear jerker. and i loved it you might think the plot is similar to Chobits.

But let me assure you this anime is something different if you pay close attention to the first episode you will find out the true nature of this anime you might have a problem realising it at first tho like i did.

I only started to figure it all out near to the end of the series which is a 13 episode long one.

So you might ask yourself what is this anime about?

I am not going to spoil much but it is about a boy Tsukasa falling in love with a so called "Giftia."

Who are Android like people but have the same emotions functions as normal people even going to the bathroom her name is Isla.

Tsukasa failed to get into college and his father has connections and got him a job at the SAI.

A company that retrieves giftias also known as memory rippers in the series.

Giftias work together with humans there as a spotter and a marksman which will be explained in the first episode so i won't go into detail about that part.

The character development is semi-decent especially the main characters get focused on.

The ending... the ending is what makes this anime what it is a real tearjerker.

If you won't cry at the end of this anime i feel truly sorry for you because it's so beautiful.

If you're not into drama tho i wouldn't watch this because this is all drama since they are retrieving people's loves/best friends the whole anime though so be ready for a tissue box and some pillows and have yourself a amazing day watching this.

I was thinking of watching Chobits. I had it on my list, but then this anime came out and I watched this instead.

Well, let's just say that after watching this I tried to avoid tear jerker anime and I was afraid of watching Chobits ever since.

Really good anime, absolutely top kek.

11/10

EDIT: I also liked how the OP changed a little with almost every episode.
