Thread: Who here thinks Mojang should remove the server blacklist?

DJ Winter - May 10, 2016, 12:40 pm

I do...

Minecraft is a business. If P2W servers are gone, then good servers will parish...

It costs money to run a decent minecraft server, obviously...

This being said, if you want to make some money to get better shit, then you need to sell good shit...

What do you think?

Pluxo - May 10, 2016, 12:41 pm

What do you mean by this?

He means they should remove the server blacklist its so dumb for the same reasons stated above.

Ever since Microsoft bought it its been well...

Frankey - May 10, 2016, 1:29 pm

Yea. Dumb idea, they are basically ruining big servers. I think they want the 'old vanilla experience' back.

BTCEXchangez - May 10, 2016, 1:48 pm

I've been out of the scene for a while, can anyone explain me more about this blacklist?

O t t o - May 10, 2016, 2:17 pm

I think it's good as it'll will make PvP more skill based apposed to who's mum makes the most.

Heart - May 10, 2016, 2:18 pm

This isn't related but what happens when Minecraft 2.0 comes out

chase. - May 10, 2016, 2:20 pm

I think p2w servers should be taxed by mojang

Suspense - May 10, 2016, 2:23 pm

They're punishing their own community because they don't like how server owners are benefitting from it. It's honestly pathetic.

Their money whoring motives are only killing the game and community that they said that they would "leave alone". They have no idea what Minecraft is.

Pluxo - May 10, 2016, 2:24 pm

Please explain further, still not sure what is being talked about.

Is this what you're trying to say?: Microsoft is trying to make people buy servers from them and not other companies that sell them for cheaper to try and get more money from server owners. Or are you trying to say they can't sell ranks or some shit?

This Mojang situation would be like Omni banning members for making too much from sales.

Gummy Bear - May 10, 2016, 3:36 pm

They should, I play on ArkhamNetwork and got "Batman" rank which is alot of money now their removing it pretty much.

DJ Winter - May 10, 2016, 6:37 pm

I do believe Mojang should tax them for their sales.

I don't know why Mojang wouldn't do it. They would make SOO much money taxing off other servers.

They should really fix this, IDK how but it's fucked up atm.

I?! ?z? ???? - May 10, 2016, 6:57 pm

I'm confused what's a p2w server basically you pay for like a god kit in a server for a kit that has like prot 10000 armor / sharp 999 swords and shit like that.

Ephoxia - May 11, 2016, 5:52 am

I don't see why they would blacklist P2W servers. They don't gain anything by blacklisting nor do they loose anything by letting them exist. People generally wouldn't donate to a server if all they got were cosmetics like particles or hats. Alot of small/medium servers would die out pretty quickly because they wouldn't get enough money to run their servers.

Luckily they aren't going for the small/medium servers yet.

TheChi?f - May 11, 2016, 7:28 am

I am not sure what the "Blacklist" is? Is it that the servers need to pay to be able to have their own server?

Vitani - May 11, 2016, 7:36 am

If they keep this up eventually only the a few servers will be able to keep running, and even they will have lots of trouble paying for everything.

Nope. The blacklist is a list of servers where you cant connect to within the New Version. If Im Right..

PrivateDonut - May 11, 2016, 7:51 am

You can still make money from a minecraft server without making it pay to win. This was released ages ago, but it was recently being put in effect.

zeroday - May 11, 2016, 11:43 am

They're not just ruining servers, they're ruining me.

Servers that make a lot of money often pay developers very well and due to this blacklist they will be making less money (if any).

They should make something like buycraft but instead of payments going to your Paypal they go to theirs and then once they've took their cut at the end of the month they send the money to your paypal. At least then they couldn't complain about servers making so much money as they would be making a boat load.

b?xxy - May 12, 2016, 9:17 pm

Nah, they're hurting so many servers..

The only way back then I was able to keep going was my donations.

Back when I had my prison server we were only paying around $50 a month and bringing in nearly $2k a month from donations.
