So you are selling updates?

Installs: Are shared and resold numerous times.

Updates: Are acquired with your file then your file is updated to the buyers, removing your file.
Loads: Are acquired by using the buyers file with your EK or method and your file is never on the machine.

While I cannot vouch or say anything bad here I do believe if you want to be taken seriously you should be using the proper terminology.

Then your main post is very deceiving.

You say

Quote:I will provide high quality bots that will not get bot killed. I get these bots from my many exploit kits and my spreading methods. These methods are not yet public and all the bots are unique. All my slaves are unused, and unsaturated. This means that you will be given a slave, that no one else has.

Guaranteed No bot kill ever since the bot has never been sold to anyone in the past. Once you buy my bot, I remove it from my system so it is 100% yours.

That would be updates not installs.

Installs are retained by you and resold many times.

Also

"You can do whatever you want with your bot, once I sell you it, it is all yours"

If you are selling installs what is stopping them from being botkilled?
