Just submitted my response will update when I get my btc

Hermenaut - May 25, 2016, 10:41 am

What's the ToS actually? How can we agree to it unless we know? You add another page stating the ToS and the rate you offer too.

Yes, I'm pretty sure too, by looking at that scam report.

Undefined - May 25, 2016, 10:51 am

Confirming that I am indeed paying at a 65% rate. For anything over $100, I'm paying 60%.

I'll soon be selling but I'm currently only buying. So yes, you can consider it a shop.

Wardow - May 28, 2016, 10:36 am

You should make that fully automatic, other than that looks good!

TheChi?f - May 31, 2016, 2:16 pm

This is a pretty nice thing ? Hopefully users won't get scammed anymore.

I don't think you can supply such code, I documented myself and Amazon does not provide APIs for redeem'ing AGCs or even checking their value, validity and such, they only provide APIs to partner willing to sell AGCs for them, its not intended for them to be used as a trading currency

It didn't. He has 1 more hour to repay me otherwise I'll just reopen the report.

Since Amazon does not provide any API, are you manually signing it risking to get a block/captcha since automated use is not intended here?

Undefined - June 5, 2016, 5:15 am

Bump. Still constantly buying AGC.

I'm constantly buying.

Deal with caution. Never trust auto shops. There're many legit AGC exchangers here.

This fucking pussy stole my Legit $25 agc code and started to blame me as I'm having a fairly low rep.

I sent him a legit code (pm me I'll show you my code to test), but this idiot showed a fake code and put dispute against me.

Be careful guys!

Deal with high rep and trusted users only.

Not this shitty auto shop.

LOOOOOOOOOOOOL

Yeah. Right. I'll provide the code for anyone who wants to test it as legit. PM me if interested. How about you make a scam report about me stealing your card then? Huh?
