User in question - <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2468746>

So basically, like 2 minutes ago, he messages me saying that he sent a $10 card through my AGC autoshop and hasn't got anything in his BTC wallet.

Full PM logs - <https://gyazo.com/612dd3959501c5830519f8ee24328f01>

I sadly sent him the $6.5 before I actually checked the card so it's my bad on this one. :(

Proof that the card is invalid - <http://prnt.sc/b8c34v>

He even posts on the thread saying that I'm legit -

So he double dipped you? Sorry to hear that lol

You should have checked his rep and automated systems always end up causing problem for either the seller or buyer.

I know about the rep thing. I was multitasking about 4 different things while going through with this deal so I wasn't paying attention. This won't really discourage me from continuing with my autoshop. Since $10 isn't too much.

Lol what I thought you were being sarcastic.

The card was not redeemed when I've sent it through your link, 5 minutes later it got redeemed so I thought it was you.

Wasn't me. I asked The Illusionist to check it and he showed the results. I expect a refund to the address that the $6.5 was sent from.

So? I still make a report. There are people scamming for $2 and reports on them exist.

Sorry for your loss OP. I've added the user into the HFALert DB to hopefully speed up this process and stop other users from getting possibly scammed. If you need any help at all i'll be at your service. Just PM me.

Also let me know if this gets resolved :)

If it was a valid card, it would have said "this card has already been redeemed and not invalid..."
