Thread: What's some good value merch?

I've got some money to blow, and I'm looking to decorate my room a bit, primarily with some comic/anime related stuff. Does anyone have some good suggestions as to what will be good stuff to buy for the money? So far I've bought a wall scroll, am looking at 2 more, and am looking into buying some pop figures. Does anyone else have some other suggestions? I just want to stretch my money as far as it will go.

You're going to regret this in 2 years time.

There's this artist on etsy that makes these really cool crystal pokeballs. She takes some orders then closes down shop till she finishes them and starts up again. Gotta wait for them but my friend showed me his mewtwo irl and it looked great so I would say its worth it.

Fill your room with Doujinshi that'd be a cheap router most likely like go online a buy an online lot of older doujinshi. People usually sell lots of them from various different comikets where they were sold for pretty cheap from what I saw on ebay and such. That'd be the best way to spice up your room for your money otherwise your gonna spend like 100$ on one small plastic figure.

How you display the doujinshi is another thing. Also the faCT that the majority of doujinshi is fan-fiction pornography. Although the art is all different artists and the art can be real nice; many real anime and manga authors are known to make doujinshi or have started that way.

Maybe paste them on your wall or some shit. You'll most likely get them for a buck or two per doujinshi if you get a lot of them. They're individual usually 20~page stories that usually have no sequels unless that doujinshi author had a following and made sequels to it.
