Synopsis:

Spoiler (Click to View) Gene Starwind has always dreamed of piloting his own ship out into the vast sea of stars. Unfortunately, not all dreams come true, as he spends his days working odd jobs alongside his partner, James Hawking, on the small planet Sentinel III instead. However, this all takes a turn when the duo takes on a job from Rachel Sweet who, unbeknownst to them, is actually a treasure-hunting outlaw. Tasked with protecting a mysterious girl known as Melfina, the meeting irrevocably changes the pair's lives as they are sent out into the great unknown aboard the highly advanced ship, Outlaw Star.

Seihou Bukyou Outlaw Star follows Gene and his ragtag crew as they brave the final frontier, navigating the stars in search of answers to the mysteries surrounding Melfina. Encountering dangerous bounty hunters, space pirates, Taoist mages, and even catgirls, there is sure to be an exhilarating adventure around every corner.

I haven't seen this anime in a few years, but since its only been somewhat mentioned in a few threads, I thought I'd make a discussion thread for it. I watched this anime after I saw Cowboy Beebop for the first time due to many similarities and it turned out to be a pretty decent follow-up anime. There is good character development and a good mix of sci-fi, comedy, and the in-between. This is definitely part of the 90's "Sci-fi Gun Trio" which includes Cowboy Beebop and Trigun. I won't spoil anything else, but if you haven't watched it I highly recommend you try to get to it ;)

Also, enjoy the intro, probs my fav in all anime since its such a catchy song:

Hey, a thread for a show I'm actually watching right now. This show is pretty great, on episode 8 so far. Animation is great, dub is pretty funny.

18 years late on that discussion thread tho. Also you tagged this as a review and then said it's a discussion.

I fixed that, thanks! Wasn't sure if I should've kept it for Anime as I did the last few ones or do Review since I thought it was a discussion thread so it would make more sense. Perhaps they could add a "Discussion/Forum" type of prefix in the future.

And nice, I thought it was a nice anime, hope you're enjoying it :)

Outlaw Star is a classic.

I don't really remember it, but it's one of my mom's favorites
