I presume a bin from a botnet is a lot more stable than say a bin from a common RAT found on HF. What botnet would you say is the most effective in terms of keeping connections alive and possessing decent execution rates?

The plan is to spread and keep connections on a botnet, then of course update the connection with a BIN from a common RAT. Is this a viable way of increasing installations?

If I am correct in what I am saying (if I am not, please correct me) which botnet both paid and free would you personally recommend?

You talk like you're from the hood you know, I wonder if your boys know how you make your money, infact I would love to know what bullshit you come up with to tell them how you make your money.

Scratching a picture of insta and putting it as your DP dont make you nobody, one day you will be on my level kidda, one day and only then you will realise what a fucking dweeb you really are.

Just think about this for a second bud, you pleasure dirty old perverts for minimal amounts of money kid, think about that.

You real hard.

Looks solid, ill check that out.. And he is being a pleb, likes to stick up for upgraded scammers to farm reputation points, blocks me then provokes me on my threads so I cant do anything.

The classic 'I have no argument, so ill stop him from arguing back, blocked tactic'.

Appreciate the tip.

I would recommend Intoxic IRC. I still have contacts with the seller and i've used it myself. It's a bit expensive but it's the best bot i've seen on the market. Sold only on russian board but still it's worth it.
