Thread: CSGO Skin gambling site hacks

SIM-3016210 - May 30, 2016, 10:13 pm

Hello all,

First off, I know nothing of hacking or coding or anything like that. I am looking for exploits to be able to hack CSGO gambling sites to be able to make profits. Yes, I know I sound like "that one guy" here but I'm a bit desperate at this point. Yesterday I lost $300 on CSGODouble and my friend lost 4k on CSGOWild. These sites are just designed to steal people's money, and so us being hypocrites, want to steal from them back. I know that's how gambling works and if I didn't want to lose money, I shouldn't have gambled, but I made a mistake and now I want to redeem myself, with my friend. If there is anyone here who knows how to do this kind of stuff, please PM me or just reply to this post.

All help is appreciated,

Thanks

Csgo gambling sites are very secure if someone could hack them they would have already, just admit you lost your money being stupid and get over it.

You're funny.

There's a fair few which are easily exploitable. It's just that most people here are autistic & have no idea how to find decent vulns, let alone exploit them.

Ok help him then, oh shit you can't. He ins't trying to steal from random shitty skin sites he is trying to get back at the one he lost on. He just needs to get over his loss, it was his fault.

You're a complete retard. CSGO betting websites are no different from any other websites, just because they don't have a login system that retards like you can find SQLi in because you login via steam doesn't mean they can't be vulnerable.

Kids with your mentality are the worst through & through.

Also, I never said I was going to help him with shit, my opinion is he gambled his money & he lost it, that's his fault. My comment was more directed at your autism cannon, not the OPs.

Also here's a news article that even documents a breach against OPSkins, so you can take your pea sized brain & try to educate it some;

I never said they couldn't be hacked I only said they are very secure and it would take a skilled person to do so, and then why would they share profit with OP? Steam is also very very secure the only way people get into accounts is by Ratting them, and now they have mobile authentication.

You do realize that if you are able to take control of a CSGO betting website, the website controls their bots so they are able to send the rewards, so access to the site = access to the bots effectively.

Yes, it would be very hard to do. And would not matter anyways because the skins would just be removed by valve. Unless you could sell $50K+ worth of skins via paypal or bitcoin in a matter of hours.

Wrong yet again.

Valve have already made their opinion on this subject clear. No skins are refunded anymore - end of.

When skins were stolen or scammed before, they used to duplicate the skin, leaving the scammer with one, but returning the same one to the original owner. That de-valued the price of skins so now they clearly state if you get fucked, it's your own fault, and that no skins will be recovered what so ever, you can read here;

Also just to finalize my point, here's me in the process of clearing out a CSGO betting site only 3 days ago;

Got a lot more than that but I can't be bothered constantly editing out the sites name.

"Update: The bot has now been retrieved by OPSkins via Valve, and the skins have been restored. Dare we say it'll be a matter of time before this happens again with far worse consequences? And is this proof that Valve is complicit in the skin betting black market?" Didn't read the full article?

I hope you realize that article was published 2 months before the security advisory I posted. Please stop trying to argue the point, you keep trying & failing, badly.

My point that it would be hard for OP to hack into a website with probably no prior knowledge is wrong? You are saying he could hack into it?

And we're back to square 1 with the retards again, are you not reading my posts?

My original point was to disprove your bullshit theory about CSGO betting sites being "secure", they get hacked often, just not by children like you or the OP.

Rabor - June 28, 2016, 2:11 am

Reiyku , how did you do that ?

Can't send pm so...

I would really like to learn that.

Eedyriisi - June 28, 2016, 5:39 am

Deviion - June 28, 2016, 7:05 am

How about you both go fight somewhere else and PM eachother than being kids on a single thread. Also its not that hard to tell them they are simply wrong instead of your flaming shit.

You either help this guy or give him legit information or you fuck off.

Thanks
