Jackie Chun - June 4, 2016, 5:23 pm

Saitama just decided to become a badass one day, Goku was literally born a badass. The experience difference is what makes goku>saitama.

Maybe in a decade if one punch stays relevant then maybe.

One punch man wtf?

Goku is such a pussy that nigga goes blonde when he goes super sayan super gay amirite?

but ya one punch man #1

Saitama is just a guy who masturbated a lot.

Mafty Navue Erin - June 4, 2016, 5:50 pm

Saitama is still a human. And we've all seen what happens to humans in DBZ. Just because Saitama can one punch big ass bugs and shit doesn't mean he can one punch a saiyan. I mean Krillen would probably be a better One Punch Man.

SIM-1349466 - June 4, 2016, 7:26 pm

This has been done before and numerous other times. Saitama stands ZERO chance against current Goku.

Don't get why this is up for debate...Again. But, here's a list of feats for both characters.

If I remember correctly, wasn't there an oracle that told Boros that Saitama was the only one who could rival him in the universe?

Almost 100% certain it was more than just Earth.

Anyhow, I'm voting on OPM. The story isn't over yet, still time for him to grow stronger.

Yes, but i'm not entirely sure what you're pointing out right now.

Saitama is a striker and has yet to prove planetary level as of now.

Granted, OPM only has 12 episodes while Dragon Ball has 400+

You can't accurately compare two characters from different series that have no connection to each other and are not even in the same universe.

You can compare characters from different series if they are from the same universe though.

One punch man is designed as a character to be able to defeat anything with just a punch (hence his name), therefore, Saitama would obviously win.

I remember the guy saying that Saitama was not serious during the whole fight and that he could've beaten him from the beginning. So technically, if he had been serious and given him one of his "serious punch" he could have killed him with only one punch. I guess we'll never know lol.

Indeed, but Saitama had to use a "Serious punch" to deflect a planet destroying attack.

We all need to remember that Lord Boros isn't even on Perfect Cell level and Cell's not even close to base Vegeta or Goku now.

I could go on forever with this debate via power scaling and feats.

Lol. How do you know that he is not on Perfect Cell's level? I don't see how Saitama deflecting such attack is a problem? Kamehameha's can destroy planets too just so you know...

Goku is probably stronger, but we have never seen Saitama being 100% serious. The whole concept of Saitama is him being so strong that he has to not fight seriously, or he will never enjoy himself while fighting an opponent because of how strong he is.

The guy is so strong; life forces him not to be serious or he'll die of boredom.
I don't know which one is the strongest between Goku and Saitama but we have to take into consideration that:

- 1: He has never fought seriously yet.
- 2: He has never fought at 100%
- 3: OPM is not finished yet. We have yet to discover Saitama's true power.

Lord Boros: Needs to use all of his power to destroy the planet.
Perfect Cell: Far beyond Frieza who casually destroyed a planet in his first form.
Super Perfect Cell: Had enough power to wipe out the Solar System.

Base Goku > Base Vegeta > SSJ3 Gotenks > Perfect Cell, etc.. You can guess the rest.

Yes, I pointed out that OPM only has 12 episodes right now in a previous post somewhere.
We have a lot more to explore with Saitama, but DBS is also still going on.

As of now, I know this is hard to believe, but Goku's punching feats are better than Saitama's.

Boros using all his power seems a lot but maybe all his power has the same value as Frieza and Perfect Cell combined. So trying to compare characters is very difficult.

And yeah, OPM is still at 12 episodes(I read the manga so I'm further but yeah).

Tbh this is retarded with all the OPM circle jerk, for any non biased viewer it's obvious how retarded strong goku is. There's no stronger anime character tbh. Nigga can literally destroy the universe

White Hat - June 8, 2016, 12:42 am

So many people choose goku over their emotional attachment to him and the show. Its like that episode of one punch man. The bicycle hero. All other heroes got beaten but he had spirit and pride to stand up as a human with no strength to eliminate the villain. The civilians hiding cheered for him and believed so much in him.. They were so convinced but it was their hearts that were convinced into that belief. That hero almost died with a swing. Then came one punch man and destroyed him with one punch. Goku fights villains.. But we can admit that when looking at it at a logical level he cannot obliterate and vaporize an enemy without making a super massive ball of chi collected from his surroundings. Saitama only needs to slightly push his fist and bam.

Saitama faced almost god like beings who do more than teleport.

I love goku and dragon ball z. But putting him in comparison to one punch man and the world hes in is wrongful.

Its like me making a show about a guy who can reconstruct matter with just a thought. There for being able to destroy and blow up anything and simultaneously remake anything. Than i say goku vs him.

No goku will not beat him.

Jacoder23 - June 8, 2016, 1:35 am

Depends on the writers.

Though if they were in a normal universe then Goku would win hands down.

He would probably also try to extend the fight as much as possible to help teach Saitama. I mean the guy's strong as hell, like planet busting hell but martial artist? No.

Not sure if srs.

Last episode of OPM he threw his first "serious punch" and it didn't even destroy a whole town.

Goku with a single punch against beerus could destroy planets. (And I must make sure you understand this, planetS not planet)

Beerus and goku punches were about to destroy the universe. There's no anime character that can even come close to those in DBZ because they are supposed to be the most ridiculous and overpowered characters ever.

And I don't even enjoy that much either series think both are extremely overrated and were nothing more than average.

Emotional ties have nothing to do with it. There are a bunch of characters that can beat Goku and I openly agree to it. Saitama is not one of them.

Reminds me of when people say "Deadpool can break the fourth wall. He's unbeatable!" Just like Deadpool, he's a "gag" character and can lose.

I've posted more than enough facts for both characters in one thread. For me, the final verdict; Goku wins until further notice.

goku could be able to 1-shot 1-punchman

but due his lax nature he would be easily defeated if caught offguard, with a (im not interested in fighting way of thinking) when fighting goku would not be hyped up and would be fighting at humane level instead of god-class level.

that would be the only way to beat him.

or become multiverse fighter class (which goku will become) (he is already at dual universal class counting the super series)

if goku becomes multiverse class (12 universes) 1punchman needs to become dimensional class to beat goku in a fight at full strength but since goku is leveling up at an insane rate he would become dimensional class before 1punchman interdimensional class, and so on, 1punchman would never be able to beat goku at full strength.

Y3llows - June 22, 2016, 9:37 am

Before I give my assertion and get bashed, everyone reading my comment should know that I'm the user that started one of the biggest AA forums about who has the strongest attacks in anime; I was team Goku the entire time.

However, when comparing different characters created by different artists and authors you have to account for their purpose within the respected series as well as the limits they reach.

Goku vs. OPM isn't even a plausible fight because of the difference in the universes they both come from. Goku's power is measured all throughout the show to help viewers understand just how far-fetched of a being he is compared to your average human; Toriyama created him to virtually have no limits, with the exception of learning from losses and coming back with a new achieved power to win. OPM is a parody, making fun of all our favorite and popular shonen manga/anime. He was created with the purpose of winning with ease while his sidekick counterparts, who appear to be the most fierce of fighters, battle for their lives.

We know how strong Goku is, we've seen what he can do. We've also seen that his bones can break, beams are shot through him (skin is penetrable), and he feels pain, HE CAN DIE. OPM? It's almost a joke that I'm analyzing him because his character isn't meant to be taken serious... But, based on the show he doesn't feel pain and he doesn't die. He punches one time.

The same people that think Goku can beat superman are probably the same ones who think he can beat OPM.

That's because everyone Saitama fought isn't on any main DBZ villains level.

Final Form Frieza > Lord Boros

Quote: The same people that think Goku can beat superman are probably the same ones who think he can beat OPM.

This is funny. I'm gonna assume you don't realize there's like 10 versions of superman. Goku can beat a lot of them and screwattack doesn't understand you don't just merge a bunch of versions together to make a single superman to throw in a battle.

Like I said earlier in the thread, Saitama is like Deadpool. He's a parody character, but he can still lose and/or be killed.

Observer - June 24, 2016, 2:34 am

Goku could defeat Saitama very easily if he wanted to, but it requires a little bit of "cheating" which he never actually did...

He can just use his teleportation to teleport saitama into space, far away from earth, saitama can't breathe in air nor fly so he'd be dead pretty fast. /thread

You can't prove that he can be killed. You just can't, sorry. In the comics, Deadpool faces different situations in which he's defeated and a weakness is shown revealing how he could die, if he were to die. However, OPM has no revealed weaknesses nor have we seen him truly falter.

You compare Frieza to Lord Boros? On what grounds? ?

Dude... The carnage beast Saitama fought looked like it could take Frieza's entire family! You want to keep in mind that there are nearly no statistics to the OPM universe as opposed to the DBZ universe, remember that Saitama's power has yet to be measured.

Let's say for a second that I entertain this idea that FF Frieza is of equal level as Lord Boros. Show me a single clip from the fight where Saitama put in actual effort in winning, excluding his final "serious punch" attack. Not only did Goku put in effort, he died, was brought back to life, and had to transform to beat FF Frieza. Oh, and to beat a dead horse over the head, Frieza ultimately still believed he could beat Goku; alternatively Lord Boros in the end basically admits he never stood a chance and that Saitama wasn't fighting seriously. So if you want to compare battles and universes, that fight was more like Goku vs. Nappa or Recoome.

By the way... ScrewAttack's analysis on Goku vs. Superman is about as spot on as that battle will ever get. Yes, it's true there are many different "versions" of Superman but that's only further proving how easily he'd kill Goku. Based on Goku's pure heart and his FIGHTING SPIRIT, he would never exploit Superman's weakness to win. I'm not even sure why you brought that up dude, their video was in english.

If nothing you say can be proven, its invalid. So that covers about 90% of your arguement.

How do I compare them? Hmmm, let's see.

Lord Boros: "Doing this places enormous stress of my body. As a result, it shortens my life"

"All my energy will be released. Blasting you and this planet to hell"

Lord Boros can't even maintain his final form and he even says "all" of his power to blow up the earth.

Frieza destroyed a planet in his first form with one finger. Lord boros loses, no question.

Quote:Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Let's say for a second that I entertain this idea that FF Frieza is of equal level as Lord Boros. Show me a single clip from the fight where Saitama put in actual effort in winning, excluding his final "serious punch" attack. Not only did Goku put in effort, he died, was brought back to life, and had to transform to beat FF Frieza. Oh, and to beat a dead horse over the head, Frieza ultimately still believed he could beat Goku; alternatively Lord Boros in the end basically admits he never stood a chance and that Saitama wasn't fighting seriously. So if you want to compare battles and universes, that fight was more like Goku vs. Nappa or Recoome.

Goku never died against Frieza...? Also, you do realize this is current Goku vs current Saitama, right?

We're not doing a "which battle in z was similar to OPM in terms of power scaling"

Quote:Spoiler \(Click to View\)

By the way... ScrewAttack's analysis on Goku vs. Superman is about as spot on as that battle will ever get. Yes, it's true there are many different "versions" of Superman but that's only further proving how easily he'd kill Goku. Based on Goku's pure heart and his FIGHTING SPIRIT, he would never exploit Superman's weakness to win. I'm not even sure why you brought that up dude, their video was in english.

Hahahahaha NO. Pre-crisis Superman and Post-Crisis may as well be different characters.

Screwattack merged numerous abilities from both to make one stronger, but not use a weaker or over powered version.

You're the one that brought up Goku vs Superman first...?

Quote:Spoiler \(Click to View\)

If nothing you say can be proven, its invalid. So that covers about 90% of your arguement.

Invalid if not proven? this is a "what if" battle. I've pointed out direct quotes that outright state the pinnacle of power for Lord Boros, so that's over with.

Until Saitama can punch on a universal scale and survive such attacks, he loses. He's also toooo slow to even fight Goku at this point. Sorry to tell you.

I can't understand how people actually think that OPM could even scratch Goku lmao.

Do you even watch DBZ Super? Goku can destroy the universe with punches, not even mentioning ki blasts.

Anyone arguing that Saitama could even touch goku is straight fanboying it hard, haven't seen people this delusional before. There's a shit ton of anime characters way stronger than Saitama.

1. Sorry my memory of Goku and Frieza's battle is shaky because of how long it spanned, despite the entire Namekian saga box set on my shelf.

2. Ending the Goku vs. Superman segment of this debate, if both characters are at their peaks across all forms and versions, Superman wins. As Superman Prime he was in every sense of the word, a God.

What I said was this. Spoiler \(Click to View\) (Jun 22, 2016 09:37 AM)fightingspirit09 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The same people that think Goku can beat superman are probably the same ones who think he can beat OPM.

So when I asked why you even brought it up, I meant it how I clearly typed it; ScrewAttack's analysis was brought up by you.

3. The bottom line here, is that we are comparing a parody anime to the biggest action anime of all time spanning 30 years and counting. So if a "what if" battle were to take place, we can only pull facts we've seen in their series. Goku has died at least twice and taken major damage, Saitama has never lost or taken real damage; this is a fact. Its true Goku has faced much stronger threats than Lord Boros, but along the way he's lost battles and then won them also. Everyone Saitama faces seems like opponents that can kill him, and they all fall to a single punch, DESPITE his enemies huge jumps in power. So imagine if the show were to continue and span out as DB, DBZ, and DBS have.

I really can't take my debate past that point because everything becomes theoretical, beyond the "what if" scenarios; mostly because I can't make an assumption about an author's creation and then place it into my assertion as though its solid fact. Cut scene.

Lol, love how all those dislikes of that vid are die-hard DBZ fans.

I do agree however that it seems rather irrational to try to compare a character who was solely created to make fun of OP protagonists in anime to one of the poster-children of super-power anime. But the video you did provide was reasonable with its explanation. I don't think Goku could survive as long as Saitama would whilst fighting an OP dude while trying not to get sucked into a Black Hole. The stamina argument is reasonable since Goku was given that limitation because his character is to try to win against all odds while still not being a complete OP character in the sense that Saitama is.

There is a ridiculous jump in power. Even Base Vegeta effortlessly beat SSJ3 Gotenks.

How is Goku dying several times even a factor? No opponent that Saitama ever faced was a threat to him. In fact, the opponents that Saitama faced couldn't even destroy a single planet without using their full power (and only Boros was capable of doing it).

Guess what, Goku was about to destroy the UNIVERSE just by fighting with Beerus, all of it just by throwing punches, not even speaking about KI Attacks which are several times more destructive.

Let me say this again: UNIVERSE

Saitama "serious punch" hardly destroyed a space ship, if anything he could destroy a planet at best.

And guess what. Goku has gotten a lot stronger since the fight with Beerus.

You're so stuck on DBS power levels! It doesn't matter how far they've come dude, please comprehend that. The series isn't over and the heroes will be getting insanely stronger, anyone can predict that just based on the nature of the show. These irrelevant posts are not helping your debate.

What don't you understand about a character who's entire premise and construction is to make fun of characters EXACTLY like the one in question? If we're going to have a serious discussion about this "what if" battle, you cannot argue beyond the basis of the two characters' creation. Goku can peak heights of the strongest being in the cosmos, but as of right now Akira has Goku in a position of progression. HE CAN BE BEATEN. I would be on the opposite side of the argument if I could say the same about Saitama.

Hopefully you don't honestly believe my assertion is biased. If it were, I wouldn't have posted some of the things I did, here.

Mkay no more comparing what the two have done and who they've fought. You expect me to comprehend your assertion, about one of my favorite anime, but you refuse to comprehend mine.

This must be a troll to increase post count because I've ended your argument more than once now.

WHAT? I'm sorry, this is just a dumb thing to write. Super is in progress, JUST like One Punch Man.

The progression of the show is developing the character. Saitama hasn't proved anything impressive yet.

Quote:The series isn't over and the heroes will be getting insanely stronger, anyone can predict that just based on the nature of the show. These irrelevant posts are not helping your debate.

Again, WHAT? People say "Saitama can do [insert feat here] but he hasn't done it yet cause it's only 12 episodes. You'll see."

Why is that? Cause they have assumptions of his power and what's to come in future episodes - everything I mentioned already happened in Super.

Do you get what i'm saying now?

Again, said by me and other users, Saitama hasn't fought anyone crazy strong.
Yes, he's durable, but guess what? When has he been hit by anything powerful?
He hasn't. Excluding physical hits, he dodges. Lord Boros isn't strong, you need to get over that.

Yes.

Without any arguing, without me repeating my original assertion of which you deliberately choose to ignore post after post, yes I get what you're saying. As a matter of fact, not only do I get what you're saying, but I actually acknowledged it in my last post.

When you decide to engage in a debate with another person, in order to "win", you have to be able to undermine the validity of the opposition. Do you even know my position?
