Thread: Life is extremely harsh sometimes.

Reven?nt - June 4, 2016, 4:58 pm

One of my family members is going to lose their 7-year-old daughter. She has had heart issues ever since she was born. Recently she was put in the hospital and had a cardiac arrest, she died a few times but they were able to bring her back; she is now on life support. Even if they had a heart for her she wouldn't be strong enough for surgery. Life is extremely messed up sometimes. I can't imagine losing a child, especially at the age of 7. I really hope we are able to grow organs and other things in the future to stop things like this from happening.

Have any of you lost anyone close to you? If so, feel free to share your story. I am also open to PM's, so if you would like to talk about it send me one.

I have never lost anyone close to me which I am thankful for. My condolences... If you need to talk then just PM me man. I'm available at any time.

Deany - June 4, 2016, 5:02 pm

7 is too young to die. :(

I appreciate it :). I wasn't super close to the little girl, however, she was such a nice and happy little girl and it's sad she passed away at such a young age.

Yh that's extremely tough especially since i have a 7 year old sister which i couldn't imagine losing. Things like this though awaken you from the facade of what you consider "life". It's all just an illusion and we ignore the most simplest things. How many of us have though about our heart failing at any moment?

jujuger - June 4, 2016, 5:47 pm

This is so screwed up. Life sucks, what it does to you. The world isn't fair whatsoever. Sometimes we take for granted the small things, and we realize how good we had it when shit like this happens

I am sorry for your loss, life is very harsh. Nature is a cruel mistress. I lost one of my best friends when he was 17 and my uncle when he was 43. Got quite a bit more out of life than only 7 years, but it shouldn't have happened nonetheless.

The friend I mentioned died of a heart condition as well.

Who Soup - June 4, 2016, 6:47 pm

I've struggled with heart problems my whole life mainly due to my sleeping issues. I'm extremely sorry to hear that. Hopefully she will be able to make it through, you honestly never know.

If you ever want to talk PM me

Man that made me feel really bad

just pray for her and don't give up on her and give and just do the surgery anyways

Krule - June 4, 2016, 6:48 pm

my dad struggled with heart problems before he passed away.

i hate it

nobody should have to go through it.

Goku???? - June 4, 2016, 6:48 pm

I am very sorry for your loss, condolences. I too have lost a few close to me and I indeed agree that life can be really unfair sometimes. I guess it's best that we all cherish those close to us because death can arrive at very unexpected times.

Truly heartbreaking. Losing a child you have had 7 years to bond with and love is terrible, my condolences to the family.

I've lost close friends, but never close family. One kid was like a mentor to me, only a few years older he would teach me things from a male role model standpoint, something I've never really had. Unfortunately he was killed in car accident at around 16 I believe due to his mother drinking and him not wearing a seat belt.

Mr.Peanut - June 4, 2016, 6:52 pm

Honestly that's fucked man, sorry for the loss of that family. It's life though, she'll be resting at least and didn't pass in a miserable way.

marigold - June 4, 2016, 6:53 pm

oh that's so sad... i wonder if they will tell her

Bluffer - June 4, 2016, 7:02 pm

That is very sad, seven is such a young age with so much potential still.

Very sorry for your loss man, that really sucks.

I really appreciate it. I hope your heart problems get better. I appreciate the offer, it's nice knowing members care.

I appreciate all of your condolences. They will be taking her off life support because doctors say she is brain dead. If I were the parents I would give it more time, however, the doctors seem positive that she won't make it. It is nice to know the members of Hackforums care, your responses were much appreciated.

Really sorry to hear that man. Losing someone is never easy. You often here of bad things happening to other people and subconsciously think "that'll never happen to me" but when it does it's really tough. As others have offered, if you'd like to talk about it feel free to PM me. Sometimes talking about things can make them easier.

That is extremely true regarding the fact people think it will never happen to them. I appreciate your comment, and I will keep your offer in mind. Thank you.

Deeply sorry for your loss, I have suffered many losses in my family that were devastating my aunt, my mother, it fucking sucks you just have to live life to the fullest and always be happy because you never know one thing from the next.

If you need someone to talk to PM me.

Reven?nt - June 4, 2016, 9:22 pm

Update: She just passed away. This is quite upsetting.

Really sorry for the lost OP. I couldn't imagine being in her parents' position right now. So many emotions and thoughts just going through your mind, it would just be crazy. My condolences to you and your family.

Desolate Night - June 4, 2016, 9:28 pm

Rest in peace, young girl.

Life is unfair and it is really making me sad to hear about cases like this. Something similar happened in my town, a 17 year guy died of heart attack on the night before prom. We used to know him and he was really a decent person. However he had a weak heart too and he insisted on smoking and drinking.

The only things we can do is to respect the people for what they were and expect them to go to a better place.

PleasantBeing - June 4, 2016, 9:30 pm

I hate to hear of such occurrences. Thoe sort of things is where you need close ones to buckle down and get into fervent prayer. And to NOT accept whatever the diagnosis is. Knowing your sick or admitting you are creates a belief, and this belief only empowers the sickness. Rebuking it and being in faithful in God can bring about wonderful healing.

Raddify - June 4, 2016, 9:36 pm

7 is to young.

shit im sitting on my pc complaining about my computer and internet speeds and this girl is dying.

Reven?nt - June 4, 2016, 11:27 pm

Thank you, everyone, for the kind words and support. You never get over it when things like this happen, you only learn to deal with it.
