What are the shows you feel deserve more love or attention than they currently get from the community?

My list, in no particular order are:

Rainbow: Nisha Rokubou no Shichinin
Knights of Sidonia
Gankutsuou: The Count of Monte Cristo

can't rmb'r anymore right now

SIM-2502833 - June 7, 2016, 5:19 pm

Definitely Dan Vs., a show no longer aired that was before My Little Pony on the Hub channel. God. I really hated my little pony, but man, Dan Vs. was worth getting that close to that program.

Beck -- Want to watch a music show that isn't doesn't surround moe high school girls? If so, then Beck's probably what you're looking for. Nobody really talks about this one for no good reason honestly; the characters are great, the music is great (especially if you're a rock fan), and the English bits are great too (watching the sub is a MUST, you'll miss out on a lot of conversations the dub doesn't cover). Ended up marathoning this one in two days, most certainly underappreciated and worth the watch.

<http://myanimelist.net/anime/57/Beck>

Paradise Kiss -- Very underrated josei romance/drama that sets itself apart from other romance series. The romance and story doesn't feel "anime" at all, and feels a bit real. Characters will argue and it won't magically get resolved. The prettiest outcomes don't always happen, and that's what I really enjoy about this show - it feels more down to earth than most romance series.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/322/Paradise_Kiss

Paranoia Agent -- The only anime series by Satoshi Kon before his unfortunate death, Paranoia Agent is a fantastic psychological thriller that focuses on a mysterious boy who rides on roller skates nicknamed "shounen bat" as he goes around striking and killing those who see him. It's a very dark series - particularly episode 8, which is the darkest anime episode I've ever seen (about on par with Berserk's final episode). All of Satoshi Kon's work is absolutely amazing, with Paranoia Agent being no exception.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/323/Mousou_Dairinin edit: oh hey, all three were made in 2004/2005, neat.

DerMensch24 - June 7, 2016, 8:57 pm

Ginga Eiyuu Densetsu (Legend of the Galactic Heroes) -- Great plot, character development, sci-fi/space odyssey and overall well written. Probably one of the better anime that never really left the Japanese market. It's an older anime yes, but it has just the right amount of everything for this specific genre of anime that only a handful of modern sci-fi anime can compete with.

Source: http://myanimelist.net/anime/820/Ginga_Eiyuu_Densetsu

Macross (a.k.a. Robotech for North Americans) -- Another older sci-fi, but gets the job done. Believe it aired a few years after the first Gundam and really kicked off a lot of the modern themes and techniques used in sci-fi anime today. This one is also a bit nostalgic as it's one of the first anime that my father showed me that got me into anime (was also as PS2 game that we used to play).

Source: <http://myanimelist.net/anime/1088/Macross>

Plastic Neesan -- This is a short anime series (you can watch all of it in 30 min essentially, they are short eps), but it was a pretty comedic anime that not too many know about. Very meme-worthy, but also very good at developing the characters and humor that makes up this anime. Definitely worth the watch.

Source: http://myanimelist.net/anime/10711/Plastic_Neesan

Planetes -- Another sci-fi anime (apparently many anime I watch are sci-fi lol), however this one is more modern. Its set-up for garbage men in space in the late 21st century is very much something different, but it delivers. The story is also well spread out (does take some time to get into, however once it gets going it gets even better) and doesn't feel rushed despite the only 26 eps in the series. Some humor and romance, but a lot of character development and a good, coherent story.

Kure-nai

That's a hidden gem not many people talk about.

Above posts gave me some good anime to watch for this week.

Though I was going to mention Baccano but after big hit of Durarara! , it got a lot of attention it deserved so it does not come under underrated anymore.

Spice and Wolf, Mirai Nikki , Accel World, Kingdom (terrible animation at the start but the story is worth it, and becomes A LOT better later on)

About Manga:

Kingdom, Nozaki Ana

By under appreciated shows I thought OP meant in this sub, S&W is prob one of the favorite anime in reddit but I hardly ever seen it mentioned here and I've been here for a couple of years now.

Same for Accel World, except it's not that well received, it's either people complaining about how short and fat the MC is or people who actually like it.

MN is alright in this sub but in general there's a ton of people who hate it.

Kingdom is truly under appreciated, it was one of my favorite anime in terms of story and the manga is within my top 3, if the anime had better graphics it could easily have been a 9.5-10/10

Spice and Wolf is for us oldies who appreciate a good story and don't look for tits to make the story.

Thought Accel World did better than that across the board? I've seen the hate but still thought it did alright, same with MN. Pretty sure those who hate it here just hate it to hate.

Not technically an anime but an animated series that was underrated was probably Static Shock that was my childhood. I think Sailor Moon was pretty under rated for awhile it had so many references in other shows and it just died down like I barely see people talk about it, it's all about One Piece, Naruto, One Punch Man or Dragon Ball these days for mainstream anime.

I wouldn't ever say it was one of a kind, but I did enjoy the 'adult' relationship as a turn of pace than the usual school romance we have now days where the girl/guy is too shy, oh shit situation where they're together, they end up together after 11 episodes of shit.

i think S&W had proper Mature(ish) romance and setting for set up for mature audience with all the profit-loss economics but i had to say about about the drama in it, its perfectly embedded.

Bungou Stray Dogs

Summary:-

Nakajima Atsushi was kicked out of his orphanage, and now he has no place to go and no food. While he is standing by a river, on the brink of starvation, he rescues a man whimsically attempting suicide. That man is Dazai Osamu, and he and his partner Kunikida are members of a very special detective agency. They have supernatural powers and deal with cases that are too dangerous for the police or the military. They're tracking down a tiger that has appeared in the area recently, around the time Atsushi came to the area. The tiger seems to have a connection to Atsushi, and by the time the case is solved, it is clear that Atsushi's future will involve much more of Dazai and the rest of the detectives!

Not that it's underated, i mean it's got a good rating online such as above 8 on most sites. But i just watched Mawaru Penguindrum; and i really enjoyed it, it was strange in many aspects however also enjoyable which i didn't expect i'd love it so much, and the visuals were so crisp. I'd recommend anyone to watch this show when you get a chance.

Mirai Nikki is definitely overrated, it's a 5 at best.

Vouch, Penguinium was a fantastic show with pretty visuals and great writing. It's actually directed by the same man who directed Sailor Moon and Shoujo Kakumei Utena, which is why it has that weird style you're talking about.

Prince of Tennis- About a boy called Echizen Ryoma on his adventure to beat his dad at tennis.

Eyeshield 21- About a boy called Sena Kobayakawa - which got fast from running away from bullies. One day a person called Hiruma spots him, and the rest(lets just say it shaped the boy's life forever)

Capeta- A boy that is neglected due to his father's work schedule gets put on the junior go-kart scene- with his first specimen being a go-kart that's running on a generator.

Gosick - Underappreciated probably because it went off on some wild tangent near the end of the series. Excellent series up until then.

Deadman Wonderland - Another excellent anime with great potential. Not sure why it never received a second season.

Those are all I have for now, I'll probably add more later.
