Don't use DarkComet. If you want a free RAT go for njRAT, for paid I haven't tried them but it looks like Orcus or Luminosity Link are the best, Imminent monitor isn't that good and the owner isn't online for support much. I don't think there is a maximum slave count.

I think there is a maximum slave count.. That is the reason why orcus has the server feature Correct me if i am wrong exploits. old. outdated. the client can use an exploit to control YOUR system as i've heard. so if you get someone who knows the exploit as a slave then they can control your PC. not too sure on that but they're exploits definately.

Exploit kits are your friend here.

I can also show you my personal method koopawert.com

I wouldn't recommend using DC, njrat, or IM. LL is the way to go. Also, the amount of slaves depends on the product and your cpu (I believe from experience but idk for sure)

Best to use multiple methods to be honest. There are plenty out there. Just search for them. As for how many it can hold depends on your internet connection and the computer your using. IF your trying to hold thousands I would not recommend a RAT.

Not sure why everyone stopped vouching for darkcomet and using it, delphi is a managed memory language so im not sure how people found more exploits in it unless their a class of vulnerability that aren't memory corruption.

If you Really want to get bots daily you have to work i recommend you torrent Spreading

2. What is the maximum RAT victims; Darkcomet, Njrat, Imminent Monitor, Nanocore & LuminosityLink can keep?

I higly recommend you to Use Nrat if you want to go with free RAT if its paid LuminosityLink or Nanocore is good

Hey. For one I highly recommend netwire as it is native and very stable.

For methods I recommend this -- > <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5291878> worth taking a read. A lot of knowledge in this guide

Darkcomet still remains the best native rat after netwire.
