Synopsis courtesy of MAL

One day, Naho Takamiya receives a letter written to herself from ten years in the future. As Naho reads on, the letter recites the exact events of the day, including the transfer of a new student into her class named Kakeru Naruse.

The Naho from ten years later repeatedly states that she has many regrets, and she wants to fix these by making sure the Naho from the past can make the right decisions—especially regarding Kakeru. What's more shocking is that she discovers that ten years later, Kakeru will no longer be with them. Future Naho asks her to watch over him closely.

I am praying that they don't mess up this show. It can be one of the best of the season.

First episode was pretty good compared to most. Had some nice developments - real looking forward to next weeks episode and so on.

Don't like the girls eyes in this tho. Too round.

So I'm guessing it's worth the watch then?

Really iffy about this, don't think I'm going to get through it all.

Yeah first episode was good enough to make me want to watch more.

Eyes are very off-putting

Happeh - July 10, 2016, 7:54 pm

Second episode was really heavy. Loving this so far, giving off a pleasant vibe

Ni??c??k - July 10, 2016, 11:10 pm

I bookmarked the anime when it was announced.

I might wait until a few more episodes though. Trying to steer clear of cliffhangers. Lmao

Those who watched Erased week by week understand this pain.

I just watched the first episode and I like the characters and for the most part the story - I feel like it is going to end up being a show that really pulls on your heart strings though. Also, the faces are actually really well done and cute, except for the eyes - they really don't look right at all and are extremely off-putting.

Did the eyes get better in episode 2? Or am I just getting used to them....

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

But if the future is still fixed to an extent, Naho will still marry Suwa, and Kakeru will still die. Not sure how much the future will change, but I don't see it ending happy.

Suwa still does seem kinda depressed at present though...

Only 3 episodes in and I'm already being hit by the feels, big time. I guess I'll cry a lot before the last episode.

It is actually really good - like every week I would be about as excited to see the next one as I was to see the next episode of ReZERO
