

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Allowing negative reputated users to post Deal Disputes.

Crystallize. - June 29, 2016, 11:36 am

Pretty much the title sums it up.

Many people scam these users because they know they cant post a deal dispute. I think this new thing will prevent "sellers" to scam members with negative reputations.

Stealth™ - June 29, 2016, 11:38 am

I agree with this, or Omni could move the Deal Disputes section out of the marketplace, whichever is easier.

Riyu - June 29, 2016, 11:38 am

I don't think this will be changed to be honest, I think it has something to do with false reports

Talu - June 29, 2016, 11:51 am

Good idea, but alternatively people with negative reputations could avoid making deals until they're in green.

labroca - June 29, 2016, 11:58 am

In order for this to be achieved, Marketplace permissions would have to be reinstated. This would cause more harm than good.

Upgrade and post in the deal disputes database and contact third parties such as HFAlert (which may be falling apart).

This will never happen, as there are a lot of shitholes with negative reputation looking to cause some drama. You can repay your debt to society and earn positive.

Crystallize. - June 29, 2016, 12:56 pm

(Jun 29, 2016 11:58 AM)?Globe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) In order for this to be achieved, Marketplace permissions would have to be reinstated. This would cause more harm than good.

Upgrade and post in the deal disputes database and contact third parties such as HFAlert (which may be falling apart).

This will never happen, as there are a lot of shitholes with negative reputation looking to cause some drama. You can repay your debt to society and earn positive. Maybe Omni could make a seperate section for Deal Disputes?

Esme - June 29, 2016, 1:10 pm

oh boy this has never been brought up before

Sadistic - June 29, 2016, 1:11 pm

(Jun 29, 2016 11:58 AM)?Globe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) In order for this to be achieved, Marketplace permissions would have to be reinstated. This would cause more harm than good.

Upgrade and post in the deal disputes database and contact third parties such as HFAlert (which may be falling apart).

This will never happen, as there are a lot of shitholes with negative reputation looking to cause some drama. You can repay your debt to society and earn positive.
How are we falling apart?

?Nuski - June 29, 2016, 1:21 pm

Omni said in the past when this was suggested if you have negative or no rep you shouldn't be dealing in the marketplace in the first place

Vitani - June 30, 2016, 3:42 am

(Jun 29, 2016 01:21 PM)?Nuski Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Omni said in the past when this was suggested if you have negative or no rep you shouldn't be dealing in the marketplace in the first place
Omniscient has said xactly this OP.

I get the idea but honestly it would do much more harm then good, and it would probably be abused aswell.

Riyu - June 30, 2016, 3:45 am

(Jun 29, 2016 01:21 PM)?Nuski Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Omni said in the past when this was suggested if you have negative or no rep you shouldn't be dealing in the marketplace in the first place
Well, I agree that it shouldn't be changed but someone could have +1 rep and the "scammer gives him a -3" which now unables him to make a deal dispute because of the scammers -3.

Crystallize. - June 30, 2016, 11:21 am

I have a feeling some of the people that are against this idea are the ones that scams negative reputed members :)

Riyu - June 30, 2016, 11:22 am

(Jun 30, 2016 11:21 AM)xc0de451 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have a feeling some of the people that are against this idea are the ones that scams negative reputed members :)Or it's because it's not that great of an idea and could lead to abuse.

Kevin Runner - June 30, 2016, 12:20 pm

(Jun 30, 2016 03:45 AM)Riyu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well, I agree that it shouldn't be changed but someone could have +1 rep and the "scammer gives him a -3" which now unables him to make a deal dispute because of the scammers -3.

Exactly why Deal Disputes section should be moved if perms can't be changed. If it's moved elsewhere then it really doesn't harm anyone and allows neg'd "scammed" people to post disputes. If you think it'll cause "cancer" and have lots of "whiny babies" then let it be, those threads will close/be ignored quickly and the section can move on regularly. It's simple.

Gerald Gillum - June 30, 2016, 12:21 pm

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4921026&highlight=negative+deal>

Crystallize. - June 30, 2016, 2:29 pm

(Jun 30, 2016 12:21 PM)Gerald Gillum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)
<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4921026&highlight=negative+deal>
And the point of that is ... ??

Esme - June 30, 2016, 2:34 pm

(Jun 30, 2016 11:21 AM)xc0de451 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have a feeling some of the people that are against this idea are the ones that scams negative reputed members :)
or it's because this has been denied multiple times yet still gets posted in this section weekly

Gerald Gillum - June 30, 2016, 9:16 pm

(Jun 30, 2016 02:29 PM)xc0de451 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) And the point of that is ... ??
It has already been asked, it was answered.

Pew ? - June 30, 2016, 9:17 pm

(Jun 29, 2016 11:51 AM)Talu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good idea, but alternatively people with negative reputations could avoid making deals until they're in green.

Then the person that scammed them can easily scam other people in that time.

Roger Waters - July 1, 2016, 6:25 am

Not going to happen.

As stated several times by other members on this threads, if you have negative reputation, you shouldn't be participating in the marketplace period.