Thread: Basic glitch effect text - Photoshop

Meow - July 7, 2016, 4:37 am

Pretty simple & easy tutorial for RGB split (or glitch) text.

This is what we will be making (font Heavitas)

Step #1

File -> New -> 600x200 pixels (HF signature size)

Step #2

Using text tool write whatever you want in black.

Step #3

Optional Color background layer in whatever color you want (I'm using #88a38d)

Make 2 copies of your text layer, CTRL + J or by right clicking on your original layer ("Meow" in my case) -> Duplicate Layer -> Ok

Do that 3 times and when you are done you should have something like this.

Step #4

Double click on your 1st copy ("Meow copy") layer and under channels uncheck R & G and click Ok.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Step #5

Double click on your 2st copy ("Meow copy 2") layer and under chanel's uncheck R & B and click ok.

Step #6

Double click on your 3rd copy ("Meow copy 3") layer and under chanel's uncheck B & G and click ok.

Spoiler (Click to View)

Step #7

Using arrow keys move your layers (one by one) little to the left/right/down/up (however you feel)

Play around with it for a bit and hopefully you should get something like this.

Didn't get this? Not even similar to this? PM me or post here and I'll gladly help you. I know it's nothing special but I guess it is helpful for beginners.

Just stumbled across this, I've actually been looking around for a good way to do this effect. Wish I came across this a couple months ago when I needed it haha.
