No need to make the same exact post 4 mins later.

Two things:

1. The Batch, Shell, Dos, and CLI section is not for DoS (Denial of Service) or DDoS (Distributed Denial of Service). Dos stands for Disk Operating System and it refers to MS-DOS (Microsoft Disk Operating System).

2. You've multi-posted this thread and have posted in several other sections (Some correct) asking for the same thing.

OK well first DDOS is dos from multiple sources so you mean DOS, second i dont mean to be rude but if yoi didnt know the difference, forget the script and learn what it a dos attack consists of, here is a website you can check out

Sorry if posting links is against rules guys...

Also crawl their site for script examples and tuts they have hidden.. here Google sreach
[site:networknightmare\[dot\]net Index of](#)

I found all this today by accident cause there index consists of scripts from a company I do work for
