ianjohnson - July 15, 2016, 9:04 am

How much money would I need to start this?

Madison Ivy - July 15, 2016, 9:08 am

Congrats OP! Ive never understood shopify, is it just a selling platform where people have to come from somewhere(i.e facebook ads, twitter promoting etc?) or is it like fiverr where you can browse people's stores?

? Social Panel - July 15, 2016, 9:24 am

Feels good man. I remember a long time ago when I first started my shop. I had spent months on this and I was just happy to see it live for the first time. After launch, the orders just started rolling in and it's come quite far. Keep going.

Here's a little motivation for you to keep going (today):

Not much. It depends whether you are using dropshipping or not and how much money you would like to spend on advertising. I'd say you can start anywhere from 50 (very basic) to 5,000 (including some product stock, marketing expenses etc.).

(Jul 15, 2016 09:08 AM)Madison Ivy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Congrats OP! Ive never understood shopify, is it just a selling platform where people have to come from somewhere(i.e facebook ads, twitter promoting etc?) or is it like fiverr where you can browse people's stores?

It is an easy to use ready-made online store for a very small amount of money. Usually the 29$ plan is used in the beginning. For one of our projects we are using the 79$ per month + variable fees plan. It is a really nice opportunity to start a low-budget, yet quite professional online store.

tulip - July 15, 2016, 11:28 pm

woah that's amazing! How are you driving traffic? Mind PMing I'm just struggling a tad with shopify

Hoodie+ - July 15, 2016, 11:39 pm

So basically you sell a product for 10% higher and when people order it you order on their address from for example Amazon?

That's at least what I understood from the Wiki definition of dropshipping.

Yes but do you need to get traffic to your store or does the traffic come itself(like in ebay)?

sosaa1eks - July 16, 2016, 9:09 am

You need traffic of course. Thats something many people underestimate. Building a shop isn't an achievement, anyone with internet connection can build one, thats why there are millions of them. Some people think that you just need a store and the sales just fly in. Without a good concept behind it including product analysis, marketing strategies etc. it is pretty much worthless.

Like:-
Case 1) Customer X says he didn't receive product, or received a stone instead of Audi Car.
Case 2) Customer Y isn't happy, and want's to return the product for money back.
Case 3) Customer Z used someone's else credit card details to order on your site.

Hey Evolved!

I'd like to partner up with you. I have been selling on eBay for quite a long time and just recently started with Shopify.

I saw your PayPal was limited, I can process PayPal payments for you if you wish (got 8 stealth accounts strong as of now, 2 of them are almost 1 year old) and pay you out in Bitcoins. Also we can split the tasks between us so as to be more efficient and test more products in less time (labour division, if you will)

Just warning you that due to my current financial situation I don't have a lot of money to invest in ads (everything is saved to pay the suppliers). So, if it's an investor you are looking for perhaps I am not the appropriate person :)

If you are interested, hit me up!
