I came across this website which looks really promising.

I signed up and there are loads of videos for free all focused on cyber security and working with Kali Linux etc.

There are many many other topics as well such as metasploit, cryptography, programming, etc..
There is also a forum to ask for help!

It's 100% free! I love it and you should check it out.

<https://www.cybrary.it>

Start using it. ?

I started using this a while back and I completely agree.

Cybrary offers a variety of courses going from basic security training to ethical hacking and forensics. All of the courses consist of videos that are incredibly easy to follow.

I think this site deserves more recognition than it already does. I don't usually see any members talk about it at all.

Great share OP. ?

99 Views, and only 8 replies?

Unacceptable Beginner Hacking section.

Yeah. I don't expect it either. There are many others that also post really good threads.

Been using this site for a while now, it's really good, though I think the cryptography class in particular is eh.

I love this website, I have spent countless hours learning several of the courses.
This is actually good in preparation for going ahead for getting information security related certifications! Much appreciated with the share OP.

Look into Penetration Testing with Kali Linux, Penetration testing & Ethical Hacking by Cybrary and even attend conventions/events. It really does help to hear the professionals such as kevin mitnick talk and attending live seminars and learning on the spot, it's great.

If you're in the area, just assuming you might be. Kali are actually at an event soon, Kali Linux Dojo at Black Hat Vegas 2016 if not, just interesting stuff to take a look at anyway! ?

Thanks for all the resources. I'm not near Vegas although I could take time out to go for the event. ?
