Thread: Create Unlimited .EDU Emails! \$5 - Warranty!

Kanye West - July 16, 2016, 10:26 pm

This is going to be extremely straight forward, I have two private methods that are both very similar but in the case of one being patched, the other will be completely unaffected.

These both do not require any work other than creating an account and entering basic information, and then waiting around an hour to four hours for the password to be emailed to you. This does NOT involve any ID forging nor real or accurate information.

First account was made 3 weeks ago.

PROOF (ask for more if needed)

WORKS/TESTED WITH:

GitHub Developer Pack

Amazon Prime

MS Office

Price and Warranty

$5 and you receive one of the methods, as I start selling these I'm not positive on whether the administrators of the service will notice the influx of users, so the second method is my backup plan to ensure the customer gets the most out of that $5.

TERMS OF PURCHASE

1. Under no circumstances will you chargeback after I provide the warranty
2. There is no guarantee that these work with any specific site other than the ones mentioned above

I'd like a voucher copy please PM me or reply back.

Kanye West - July 18, 2016, 6:02 am

PLEASE Do not contact me about the vouch copy if you're obviously a bottom feeder.

WooT - August 23, 2016, 4:51 pm

Interested, please PM me?

Malthemar - August 23, 2016, 4:52 pm

I'll take a vouch copy if it's available.

That's outdated and has been for ~6 months.

You can try www.vccs.edu

I know there is a public method that involves VCCS.

I never knew it was outdated aha. I have one of those emails and nothing ever happened to it, although i did hear some of those emails were suspended.

The majority of already existing accounts will remain.

However, signing up for their email service is now a lot lengthier and impossible if you're not in the States.

You must have misread what I said.

California College is outdated.

I too am from the UK and have a email.vccs.edu address.

I was referring too when you said it's 'impossible if you're not in the States.'

But shit I didn't know they're outdated that took me like 15 minutes as well lol

Yes, I know what you were referring to.

When I said that it's impossible outside of the USA, I was talking about California College EDU addresses, not Virginia Community College.
