So I woke up this morning to find someone had gotten into my email somehow and got password resets to pretty much all of my accounts. One of them was a pretty valuable snapchat. If this guy changed the email and phone of the account to something else is it still possible to get it back, seeing as I've owned it for 3 years? Oh and I also have an email and phone number he used for one of the accounts if anyone wants to track this guy down and/or fuck with him.

I think this should be in the "requests for hacking" section.
