Thread: Posting restrictions

Excuse my french but they're tight as shit. I've been a member of this forum for 4 years and I still can't post shit anywhere without some message telling me I can't. I know my post count is low but damn, any of the threads I want to post in I can't and it gives me absolutely no initiative to get my post count up.

The only threads I find myself posting in now and then seem to be in the Vices section and since I only smoke weed I haven't got much to post there, any other threads that spark my interest from other sections and I can't really reply to them. Really shows why in 4 years I've got under 100 posts.

No disrespect to Hack Forums or the staff, but these restrictions are really the only thing preventing me from being an active user here, and I wouldn't find it hard to believe that other people feel the same.

As per the first rule of this section, I did check a few pages out and searched the topic but couldn't find anything related so sorry if I missed something that's already been posted. Once again I'm not trying to undermine the staff here, I'm just saying it's quite off-putting for someone like me, and I entirely understand why certain sections would be restricted in such a way - some just don't seem to make sense to me, though.

Ok just spotted this <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=577653> time to /thread before I get banned.

Upgrade and it will all be better.

Aside from the fact that I probably wont upgrade, at least not unless it was free - would an upgrade relieve all non-usergroup restrictions? (posts, rep, prestige, etc)

Also thanks for responding :).

Upgrading relieves all of the posting restrictions besides the positive reputation requirement for the marketplace.
